Future-Proof Your Team
LEADERSHIP PLANNERS
Catherine Hakala-Ausperk | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1770-1
Does everything just seem to be happening too fast? Are you finding there's no time between hearing that change is coming and dealing with your team's frustration once it arrives? What's more, although you're supposed to be directing, supporting, and helping your team succeed, you're getting pulled down into the quicksand too! From renowned leadership guru Hakala-Ausperk comes this unique planner for helping your team survive and thrive amidst change. It's filled with a variety of planning exercises, activities, and self-directed questions that will help you

- step back and reflect on what's happening, what's out of whack, and what you can do to get focused;
- think about what changes your users really want from libraries, as well as what your team needs from you as a leader;
- build trust and confidence in the future among the people you supervise;
- identify simple and effective solutions to current and future problems;
- finalize your plan by creating lists, sketching out a calendar, and following up with your team; and
- plan ways to adapt to changes while staying grounded.

Edited by Lisa K. Hussey and Diane L. Velasquez | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1715-2
Just because a set of responsibilities isn't formally called management doesn't mean that it isn't management. And this vital text speaks to a reality that all current professionals already know: that is, everyone studying to enter the profession needs an introduction to the topic of management. Because no matter what one's role in an academic or public library context, it will involve decision-making, planning, and organization skills. Newly revised and updated, this book pulls together management best practices from library management experts teaching in LIS programs across the U.S. and Canada. Among the many topics discussed are

- classic and contemporary theories of management, and how they apply to the library;
- human resource planning;
- marketing and public relations;
- negotiations, mediation, and financial management of the library;
- facilities management;
- information technology management and future trends;
- change management, organizational culture; and
- ethics and confidentiality.

In addition to providing students with a solid foundation in library management, with its structured, practical knowledge this impressive volume will also benefit experienced managers.
The No-Nonsense Guide to Project Management

Barbara Allan  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-203-1

A practical guide for library administrators, managers, and practitioners, this new book brings together key library assessment methodologies and details how they can be used to improve an academic library. It focuses on common sources of data that academic libraries are already collecting, and presents simple qualitative and quantitative techniques that can be used to evaluate and assess services. Featuring numerous case studies, this book includes coverage of

› the theoretical framework for assessment, its purpose, and the tools and techniques used;
› institutional, national and international student surveys and how they can be used to improve library services;
› the history and development of standardized library surveys (e.g. LibQUAL+®) and their impact;
› the benefits of inhouse library surveys, demonstrated using case studies;
› qualitative feedback in the library; and
› taking a holistic approach to library assessment through advocacy and strategic planning.

Academic Libraries for Commuter Students: Research-Based Strategies

Edited by Mariana Regalado and Maura A. Smale  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1701-5

Did you know that more than 85% of U.S. undergraduates commute to college? Edited by a team of librarians and anthropologists with City University of New York, this book draws on their ongoing research while also presenting several additional case studies from a range of institution types and sizes. Topics include

› why IUPUI interior designers decided to scrap plans to remove public workstations to make way for collaborative space;
› how ongoing studies by the University of North Carolina shaped the design of the Family Friendly Library Room, where students may bring their children;
› ways that free scanners and tablet lending at Brooklyn College supports subway students;
› using ACRL’s Assessment in Action model to learn about student engagement and outcomes with library instruction at a community college; and › guidance on enlisting the help of anthropology students to conduct interviews and observations in an ethnographic study.

Academic Library Value: The Impact Starter Kit

Megan Oakleaf  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1592-9

It’s up to you to measure the value of your academic library and how it delivers on your institution’s goals. The question is how to do it efficiently and effectively. This resource from Oakleaf, who wrote a benchmark 2010 ACRL report on library value, will help you apply value and impact concepts to your own library. It includes 52 activities designed as part of professional development workshops and in consultation with libraries. By using this book, you’ll learn how to identify your stakeholders, listen to them, take new approaches to addressing value, and ultimately position your library as an increasingly valued asset. The activities inside will guide you through such key issues as

› stakeholder views of library servicescapes;
› institutional communications audit; assessment fears, challenges, and barriers;
› impact on student retention;
› involving the entire library organization; and › reporting the results.
Essential Management Skills for Library and Information Professionals
Mary E. Wilkins-Jordan | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1497-7
Informed by the author’s research on critical skill sets, this text explores a variety of managerial topics, fusing theory with a hands-on approach that encourages practical application. Suitable for self-paced study as well as specific guidance on particular subjects, this book

› utilizes an engaging tone far removed from the dry manner of a lecture hall, helping to cement knowledge gained in the course of reading;
› covers ethics, personal career development, human resources, planning, evaluation, budgeting, communication, leadership, advocacy, and many other important management issues;
› organizes concepts into units that feature case studies, discussion questions, a list of tasks that can be used as assignments, and a bibliography of additional resources; begins with foundational concepts and builds unit-by-unit to increasingly advanced sets of skills; and › concludes by presenting ways to think more broadly about being part of the larger LIS profession.

Financial Management for Libraries
William W. Sannwald | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1560-8
Presenting financial management principles and best practices applicable to both public and academic libraries, this comprehensive text

› gives readers a solid grounding in the basics of accounting and finance, with an emphasis on applicability to library management and operations;
› ties budgets and strategic planning to library mission, goals, and objectives;
› discusses the roles of stakeholders such as boards, governmental/municipal bodies, the university, and the community;
› looks at a variety of funding sources, from tax revenue to gifts and donations, and presents sound strategies for including them when projecting income and expenses;
› articulates and discusses the pros and cons of various budget strategies;
› includes sample budgets and forms that can be customized as needed; and › offers expert guidance on modifying budgets for windfalls and shortfalls.

Reengineering the Library: Issues in Electronic Resources Management
Edited by George Stachokas | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1621-6
In this book, the Association for Library Collections & Technical Services (ALCTS) gathers a variety of perspectives to examine recent developments in electronic resources management (ERM) and how this work fits into the overall mission of the contemporary academic library. Thoroughly grounded in experience and everyday best practices while also considering how ERM can best fulfill the mission of today’s academic libraries, this book’s contributors discuss issues such as › interdepartmental workflows such as instruction, metadata, and user support that impact electronic resources management;

› strategies for controlling costs;
› license arrangements to allow text and data mining;
› managing the transition from dedicated ERM systems to integration into library service platforms;
› new analytics and assessment techniques; and › operational improvements for better usability, troubleshooting, and customer support.

The Dysfunctional Library: Challenges and Solutions to Workplace Relationships

Jo Henry, Joe Eshleman, and Richard Moniz | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1623-0

Negative behaviors such as incivility, toxicity, deviant behavior, workplace politics, and team and leadership dysfunction not only make the library a stressful workplace, they also run counter to the core values of librarianship. An important tool for library leaders and managers as well as library staff, this book examines these negative relationship-based issues and suggests practical, research-based solutions by

› discussing the importance of understanding oneself as related to the library workplace;
› showing how organizational dysfunction is rooted in problems such as poor communication, inadequate leadership, and lack of employee engagement;
› breaking down relatable scenarios to analyze what's behind them and how to defuse them, ranging from a gossipy coworker to workplace bullying and mobbing;
› exploring causes, results, and potential solutions in the areas of cyberloafing, fraud, theft, and sabotage;
› delving into the importance of conflict management, surveying a variety of approaches and applications;
› examining the use of teams in libraries and the impact of favoritism, nepotism, and sexism; and › providing techniques for successful collaboration, leadership, organizational communication, and other key management topics.
Project Management in Libraries: On Time, On Budget, On Target

Carly Wiggins Searcy | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1719-0

A recent study showed that only 53 percent of projects come in on budget and only 49 percent on schedule. So what does it take to be an on-time finisher? Searcy, a certified Project Management Professional as well as a librarian, takes readers through mastering the key skills that will make it happen: initiating, planning, executing, monitoring, and closing. Applying project management principles in a library-project context, this book provides to-the-point guidance on

- running effective and productive meetings by using a checklist approach;
- treating people fairly while openly sharing information;
- ways to simplify workflows by choosing the most suitable software program;
- how to write a project charter;
- the agile concept of self-organizing teams;
- identifying risks and planning for the downside;
- managing scope creep by maintaining realistic expectations; and
- using a checklist to close projects so they stay closed.

Your Technology Outreach Adventure: Tools for Human-Centered Problem Solving
Erin Berman | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1778-7

Libraries have taken the center stage when it comes to providing free access to technology to those who visit their physical spaces. But how about people who don’t walk into a library? It’s time to launch an adventure! Berman, named an ALA Emerging Leader, provides readers with a comprehensive plan for creating and implementing successful technology-based outreach. She also teaches readers design thinking skills that can enable library staff to become creative problem solvers. Sharing the methods and experiences of her team at San José Public Library, Berman’s guide

› presents numerous real-world case studies, including videomaking in a skate park, e-readers for seniors, popup mobile makerspaces, and simple circuits in middle school, that will inspire readers to move technology beyond the walls of the library;
› offers dozens of design thinking exercises, such as rapid prototyping, empathy mapping, and logic models, as part of a start-to-finish model for developing a new program concept;
› shares outreach fundamentals and best practices that will help ensure success; and › provides information about ways to connect with the community, perform evaluation, and additional resources.

The Librarian’s Guide to Homelessness: An Empathy-Driven Approach to Solving Problems, Preventing Conflict, and Serving Everyone
Ryan J. Dowd | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1626-1

“A comprehensive handbook that’s sure to grow even more relevant as time goes on.” —Booklist

Staff at public libraries interact with almost as many homeless individuals as staff at shelters do. Empathy and understanding, along with specific actionable advice that’s drawn from experience, makes all the difference in working with this group. In this book Dowd, executive director of a homeless shelter, spotlights best practices drawn from his own shelter’s policies and training materials. Filled with to-the-point guidance that will help frontline public library staff and managers understand and serve this population better, this resource › debunks widespread myths about these individuals, explaining what issues they struggle with, and how libraries can shift towards supporting them;

› shares de-escalation techniques like showing respect, ways to avoid making things personal, and using proper body language;
› walks readers through dealing with common issues like a sleeping patron, questionable hygiene, offensive behavior, and asking a patron to leave; and › advises on how to provide backup to a colleague and when to call the police.
Escape Rooms and Other Immersive Experiences in the Library
Ellyssa Kroski | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1767-1
Sharpening participants’ problem solving and collaboration skills by mashing up real-time adventure, immersive theater, gaming, and old-fashioned entertainment, escape rooms are a natural for libraries. And, as this fun guide demonstrates, they’re feasible for a range of audiences and library budgets. Whether you’re already an escape room aficionado or an intrigued novice looking for ways to enliven your program, Kroski has got you covered. This book › shows how escape rooms and other immersive experiences can be used to teach information literacy skills, add unique youth programming, bring adults into the library, and instruct patrons about library resources in the form of puzzles and challenges;
› profiles several successful library projects, from large scale programs like New York Public Libraries’ Find the Future: The Game to smaller ones like Search for Alexander Hamilton;
› offers dozens of programming ideas and examples that can be tailored to fit a variety of libraries and budgets; and › provides information on game kits available for purchase, tips for partnering with local Escape Room businesses, and links to additional resources.

63 Ready-to-Use Maker Projects
Edited by Ellyssa Kroski | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1591-2
“Well organized and easy to follow . . . Whether readers are new to maker spaces or have been implementing them for years, they’ll find these examples inspiring.”
—School Library Journal
This new compilation from editor and maker Kroski spotlights a multitude of creative projects that you can tailor for your own library. Librarians and makers from across the country present projects as fun as an upcycled fashion show, as practical as Bluetooth speakers, and as mischievous as a catapult. Included are projects for artists, sewers, videographers, coders, and engineers. The handy reference format will help you quickly identify the estimated costs, materials, and equipment; and because several projects don’t even require a dedicated makerspace, every library can join in. Inside you’ll find how-to guidance for projects like › a foam rocket launcher;
› stop-motion animation with 3D print characters;
› found-object robots;
› glowing ghost marionettes;
› Arduino eTextiles;
› magnetic slime;
› yarn painting;
› fidget flannels;
› an LED brooch; and
› cardboard sculpture.

The Makerspace Librarian’s Sourcebook

Bibliotherapy
Edited by Liz Brewster and Sarah McNicol | PRINT: 978-1-78330-341-0

Bibliotherapy programs can now be found in libraries all over the world, from public libraries to health/hospital libraries and academic libraries. This book draws on the latest international practical and theoretical developments in bibliotherapy to explore how libraries can best support the health and wellbeing of their communities.

This book encompasses all aspects of “bibliotherapy” in its widest sense, starting with a critical historical overview of bibliotherapy, followed by an explanation of theories or approaches to bibliotherapy. The book explains how various bibliotherapy models work by drawing on practical examples to demonstrate how the theories behind bibliotherapy can be applied in practice.

Case studies include a range of settings (public library, academic library, outpatient, inpatient); populations (including young people, ESOL speakers, psychiatric patients, homeless people, people with dementia, and caregivers); and countries (UK, North America, South America, Australia).

Before the Ballot: Building Political Support for Library Funding

John Chrastka and Patrick "PC" Sweeney | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1779-4

The work that librarians need to do to influence local politics doesn’t just pop up in the few months before Election Day. This book speaks directly to librarians, library staff, and boards, helping them understand and navigate the political nature of their work in the years leading up to a ballot measure or political initiative. Sharing the tools and tactics developed by their organization EveryLibrary, the nation’s first and only Political Action Committee for Libraries, in this book the authors

› discuss how the day-to-day work of librarians and their communications with the public can help increase the willingness of public and elected officials to support funding libraries through taxes;
› guide readers through running a public-facing Informational Communications Campaign;
› explain the concept of surfacing, the important groundwork of occupying a strong and positive space in the community;
› share the most recent data on voter attitudes about libraries and librarians; › offer advice on finding, activating, and holding onto supporters; and › discuss the path to the ballot with practical insights about how to get onto the ballot.

Marketing Your Library’s Electronic Resources, Second Edition

Marie R. Kennedy and Cheryl LaGuardia | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1565-3

“Spoiler alert: Marketing Your Library’s Electronic Resources accomplishes exactly what its title forewarns . . . the content is very high quality and can be extremely valuable for many libraries.”—ARBA

When frontline librarians improve awareness of under-utilized resources, thereby increasing demand for more of the same, it can also encourage increased funding for the library. The authors’ evidence-based approach to promoting electronic resources effectively made the previous edition of this guide a bestseller. Newly expanded and updated, this manual shows library marketing staff how to get the job done from beginning to end and in a variety of library settings. Comprehensive yet to the point, this book includes

› seven complete programs from both public and academic libraries;
› an examination of the e-resource life cycle;
› cutting edge guidance on COUNTER usage reports and other web analytics;
› advice on making the most of marketing opportunities from learning management systems, discovery services, LibGuides, and more; and
› a step-by-step organization guide, with a variety of feedback and assessment forms which can be used as models.

This book’s flexible, step-by-step layout makes it an ideal resource for a wide range of learning styles, institutional environments, and levels of marketing experience.

Easy Graphic Design for Librarians: From Color to Kerning

Diana K. Wakimoto | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1593-6

From the layout of a library’s web banner to the swag handed out during summer reading programs, libraries make their visual identities known through the many forms of communication they produce and share. And even if “graphic designer” isn’t technically in your job description, wouldn’t you like to do it better? This approachable introduction to graphic design:

- offers a concise overview of graphic design fundamentals such as typography, color, layout, and using images;
- outlines a design process for busy librarians emphasizing a pragmatic approach to creating materials;
- explains how to use tools like templates and style guides, and how to choose the right software for a particular project;
- includes guidance on creating bookmarks, brochures, flyers, and buttons;
- shows how to get more bang for your buck through flexible designs that can be repurposed; and
- provides a resource guide and suggestions for further readings.

Leveraging Wikipedia: Connecting Communities of Knowledge

Edited by Merrilee Proffitt | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1632-2

Libraries need not see Wikipedia as competition; rather, failing to leverage its omnipresence in the online world constitutes a missed opportunity. As a senior program officer at OCLC, Proffitt has encouraged collaboration between Wikipedia and cultural heritage institutions, leading to increased visibility and user engagement at participating organizations. Here, she brings onboard a raft of contributors from the worlds of academia, archives, libraries, and members of the volunteer Wikipedia community who together point towards connecting these various communities of knowledge. This book will inspire libraries to get involved in the Wikipedia community through programs and activities such as:

- hosting editathons;
- contributing content and helping to bridge important gaps in Wikipedia;
- ensuring that library content is connected through the world’s biggest encyclopedia;
- working with the Wikipedia education community; and
- engaging with Wikipedians as allies in a quest to expand access to knowledge.

Beyond Reality: Augmented, Virtual, and Mixed Reality in the Library

Edited by Kenneth J. Varnum | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1785-5

The current price of virtual reality headsets may seem out of economic reach for most libraries, but the potential of “assisted reality” tools goes well beyond merely inviting patrons to strap on a pair of goggles. Ranging from enhanced training to using third-party apps to enrich digital collections, there are a kaleidoscope of library uses for augmented, virtual, or mixed reality. In this collection, Varnum and his hand-picked team of contributors share exciting, surprising, and inspiring case studies from a mix of institution types, spotlighting such topics as

- collaborative virtual reality for improved library instruction, education, and learning and teaching;
- 3D modeling using virtual reality;
- virtual reality as collaboration space, from gaming to teleconferencing;
- balancing access with security, and other privacy issues;
- future possibilities for augmented reality in public libraries; and
- augmented reality for museums and special collection libraries.

A perfect introduction to the topic, this book will encourage libraries to look beyond their own reality and adapt the ideas inside.

Whether you're embarking on the challenge of building a digital collection from scratch, or simply need to understand the conceptual and technical challenges of constructing a digital library, this top-to-bottom resource is the ideal guidebook to keep at your side. Demystifying core technologies and workflows, its chapters walk you step-by-step through every stage. This book comprehensively covers:

- needs assessment and planning for a digital repository;
- acquiring, processing, classifying, and describing digital content;
- storing and managing resources in a digital repository;
- technologies and standards useful to digital repositories, including XML, the Portland Common Data Model, metadata schema such as Dublin Core, scripting using JSON and REST, linked open data, and automated metadata assignment; and
- analyzing repository use, planning for the future, migrating to new platforms, and accommodating new types of data.

Using Digital Analytics for Smart Assessment

Tabatha Farney | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1598-1

Too often library analytic programs simplify data into basic units of measurements that miss useful insights. Here, data expert Farney shows you how to maximize your efforts. Teaching you how to identify and analyze areas that fit your library's priorities, this book covers:

- case studies of library projects with digital analytics;
- ways to use email campaign data from MailChimp or ConstantContact;
- how to measure click-through rates from unavailable items in the catalog to the ILL module;
- getting data from search tools such as library catalogs, journal search portals, link resolvers, and digital repositories;
- using COUNTER compliant data from your electronic resources;
- techniques for using Google Tag Manager; and
- descriptions of analytics tools ranging from library analytics tools like Springshare's LibInsights and Orangeboy's Savannah to more focused web analytics tools like Google Analytics, Piwik, and Woopra.

Information Law: Compliance for Librarians, Knowledge Managers and Information Professionals

Charles Oppenheim and Naomi Korn | PRINT: 978-1-78330-366-3

Library staff, information managers, academics, learning technologists, researchers, and other practitioners who collect, use, create, share, or provide access to content, data, databases, personal data, and software need to be aware of the legal and licensing issues that might arise from these activities. This new, fully up-to-date guide will adopt a practical hands-on approach to this complex area, which is viewed from both an operational and strategic perspective.

The issue of information law compliance is more crucial now than ever with the new, more stringent adoption of the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) provisions across the EU. It's not just about what data you handle, but why you have it, where it is held, and who you are sharing it with.

This resource is based on a Compliance Model developed by Naomi Korn, and includes case studies, flow charts, sample contractual clauses and model licenses, top tips and checklists. There is also a Glossary of Terms, an annotated guide to further reading, and useful contact lists.
Partners for Preservation: Successful Digital Preservation through Cross-Community Collaboration
Edited by Jeanne Kramer-Smyth | PRINT: 978-1-78330-347-2

The only certainty about technology is that it will change. The speed of that change, and the ever-increasing diversity of digital formats, tools, and platforms, will present stark challenges to the long-term preservation of digital records. Partners for Preservation advocates the need for archivists to recruit partners and learn lessons from across diverse professions to work more effectively within the digital landscape. This book features chapters from international contributors from diverse backgrounds and professions discussing their challenges with and victories over digital problems that share common issues with those facing digital preservationists, including such topics as:

- the internet of things;
- digital architecture;
- research data and collaboration;
- open source programming;
- privacy, memory, and transparency; and
- inheritance of digital media.

This book will be useful reading for professional archivists and others responsible for digital preservation, students of archival studies and digital preservation.

Getting Resource Discovery Right for Your User Community
Edited by Simon McLeish | PRINT: 978-1-78330-138-6

This important new book contains a range of contributions analyzing the ways in which libraries, museums, and other institutions are tackling the challenges facing them in discovery in the (post)-Google era. Chapters are written by experts, both global and local, describing specific areas of discovery and local implementations and ideas. The book will help with enhancing discovery both inbound—making locally held resources globally discoverable—and outbound—making global resources locally discoverable—in ways which are relevant to your user community. Discussion topics include:

- a survey of what resource discovery is today;
- analysis of how users approach discovery;
- using limited resources to help users find collections;
- discussion of the special requirements of and solutions for archives and museums;
- the role museum and library discovery plays in learning and teaching;
- linked open data and discovery; and
- the future of discovery.

Competency-Based Career Planning for Reference and User Services Professionals

Jo Bell Whitlatch and Beth S. Woodard  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1780-0

Reference and user services librarians need to be in charge of their own careers, and that means being proactive. Utilizing the RUSA (Reference and User Services Association) Professional Competencies as a framework for reflecting on strengths as well as gaps in expertise, this book guides readers through developing strategies to enhance their professional standing and potential. Former RUSA president Whitlatch, who chaired the initial committee establishing the Competencies, teams up with expert trainer Woodard to

- introduce the seven categories of the Competencies, explaining the ways in which each is important to both practitioner and institution;
- demonstrate how to create a personal development plan;
- discuss the Association for Talent Development (ATD) Competency Development Model and other action plans;
- offer guidance for setting goals and measuring progress;
- share information on a variety of development activities that readers can undertake, including formal training opportunities, on-the-job experiences, and self-directed initiatives; and
- provide recommended self-evaluation techniques such as exercises, short verbal and written reports, crafting presentations on a topic, and sharing concrete examples of how skills were applied in the workplace.

Practical Data Science for Information Professionals

David Stuart  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-344-1

Data science has a wide range of applications within the information profession, from working alongside researchers in the discovery of new knowledge, to the application of business analytics for the smoother running of a library or library services. Practical Data Science for Information Professionals provides an accessible introduction to data science, using detailed examples and analysis on real data sets to explore the basics of the subject. Content covered includes

- the growing importance of data science;
- the role of the information professional in data science;
- some of the most important tools and methods that information professionals may use; and
- an analysis of the future of data science and the role of the information professional.

This book will be of interest to all types of libraries around the world, from large academic libraries to small research libraries. By focusing on the application of open source software, the book aims to reduce barriers for readers to use the lessons learned within.

Foundations of Information Ethics
Edited by John T. F. Burgess and Emily J. M. Knox; Foreword by Robert Hauptman
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1722-0

The need for an intellectual primer on information ethics that also functions as a solid working casebook for LIS students and professionals has never been more urgent. This text, written by a stellar group of ethics scholars and contributors from around the globe, expertly fills that need. Organized into twelve chapters, this volume

› thoroughly covers principles and concepts in information ethics, as well as the history of ethics in the information professions;
› examines human rights, information access, privacy, discourse, intellectual property, censorship, data and cybersecurity ethics, intercultural Information ethics, and global digital citizenship and responsibility;
› provides historical context along with timely and relevant case studies; and › features contributions from John M. Budd, Paul T. Jaeger, Rachel Fischer, and Margaret Zimmerman, among others.

Sustainable Thinking:
Ensuring Your Library’s Future in an Uncertain World
Rebekkah Smith Aldrich | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1688-9

In communicating the value of libraries to our society what our profession needs is confidence, determination, and the will to succeed. Aldrich shows that the first step towards a sustainable library is sustainable thinking. This inspiring book

› begins with a situation report that examines the myriad societal disruptions that are impacting libraries;
› defines how sustainable thinking encompasses not just the environment but economics and social equity as well;
› details the Three Es of Sustainable Libraries;
› lays out a host of tactics to build intense loyalty to your library from the inside out through policy changes and purposeful leadership; and
› guides you in communicating effectively with the community, thereby ensuring that your advocacy connects with the maximum number of people.

Data and Information: Organization and Access
G. G. Chowdhury and Sudatta Chowdhury | PRINT: 978-1-78330-260-4

This important new foundational text covers the theory, practice, research issues, and contexts of information organization and interactive information retrieval. Readers will learn about the key principles of information organization and retrieval along with the essentials of human information behavior and information seeking and retrieval, and how to put them into practice. This book will help readers develop creative, critical and reflective problem solving capabilities in the management of information and data and allow them to demonstrate advanced information and data management skills in diverse environments. Topics covered include:

› structured and unstructured information resources;
› digital libraries web information;
› indexing techniques;
› information retrieval models;
› information interactions in specific domains and contexts; and › human information behavior models.
Anonymity
LIBRARY FUTURES, BOOK 1
Alison Macrina and Talya Cooper | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1633-9

In the virtual realm, anonymity means that such bedrock values of librarianship as privacy, free speech, and intellectual freedom coexist uneasily with the proliferation of fake news, sexist and racist sentiments, and repugnant ideologies. As trusted guardians of knowledge, libraries and librarians can fill a growing need for reputable information and open dialog. Macrina, founder and director of the Library Freedom Project and a core contributor to the Tor Project, along with co-author Cooper of The Intercept, discuss apps (Whisper, Secret) and forums (Reddit) that promote anonymity as a central feature, even as so-called true anonymity remains elusive because of pervasive user data tracking. They also examine how anonymous content has become valuable fodder for both news organizations and clickbait websites. Will the rise of anonymity and the vulnerabilities it exposes, especially for governments and businesses, lead to a movement against it? Or have our society and its technology passed the point of no return?

Resilience
LIBRARY FUTURES, BOOK 2
Rebekkah Smith Aldrich | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1634-6

Resilience (or resiliency) incorporates preparations for and rapid recovery from physical, social, and economic disruptions, including environmental disasters, terrorist attacks, or economic collapse. As city, state, and the federal governments adopt resiliency as a strategy for addressing potential disasters, libraries may need to align their facilities, services, and programs to demonstrate a resilient strategy. Additionally, libraries may find themselves competing for funding with other programs or initiatives, especially in an increasingly limited pool of government spending. A founding member of ALA’s Sustainability Round Table, and a longtime public library development consultant, in this book Aldrich discusses how resilience can align with library values of equity and access, and why libraries and information professionals may be ideal partners or providers in helping individuals and the communities which they serve adopt resilient practices. This thought-provoking treatment of timely topic offers important points of consideration for library administrators and managers, as well as scholars of urban planning and public policy.
Design Thinking
LIBRARY FUTURES, BOOK 4
Rachel Ivy Clarke | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1792-3

The Library Futures Series continues with this primer on design thinking, broadly defined as an approach to problem solving which prioritizes empathy with and deeper understandings of users to define a problem; actively engages in prototyping to develop solutions; and iterates solutions through implementation and resulting modification. Clarke, a researcher whose work has systematically examined the capacity of design thinking to revolutionize LIS education and the exploration of diverse library reading materials, guides readers through this trend. After introducing the concept, she outlines the steps of the design thinking process model. She then shares various examples of design projects in libraries, illustrating how design thinking extends beyond just space planning or website design and is applicable to all library products and services. She also demonstrates the ways in which design can either enable or stifle such foundational library values as intellectual freedom, diversity, and access. Concluding with a rousing call to action for all librarians to recognize their positions as designers, this book will encourage readers to recognize how design thinking can empower libraries.

Blockchain
LIBRARY FUTURES, BOOK 3
Susan Alman and Sandra Hirsh | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1743-5

Blockchain technology is a concept with far-reaching implications for the future of recordkeeping. It uses a distributed database (multiple devices not connected to a common processor) that organizes data into records (blocks) that have cryptographic validation. The data are timestamped and linked to previous records so that they can only be changed by those who own the encryption keys to write to the files. Firms like Microsoft and IBM are already exploring ways that blockchain can more securely handle valuable transaction data. And Sony is harnessing blockchain to store educational information that can easily be transferred between schools as students move or graduate. In this book, technology experts Alman and Hirsh discuss how blockchain's potential use as a convenient system for recordkeeping could lead to more government documents, historical records, and other pieces of information migrating to such a system. They also examine its possible consequences for academic, public, school, and special libraries, as well as the information professionals who sustain those institutions.

Transform and Thrive: Ideas to Invigorate Your Library and Your Community

Dorothy Stoltz with Gail Griffith, James Kelly, Muffie Smith, and Lynn Wheeler
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1622-3

Successful libraries are those that continuously learn to listen and respond, prioritizing an organizational approach that encourages library staff to work with each other as well as the community to create opportunities to thrive. That may sound airy and abstract, but in this book the authors demonstrate how it boils down to applying a handful of straightforward principles. With practical applications for hiring staff, coordinating an author event, creating a community partnership, and designing a building, this book walks readers through how to › identify the community's motivating factors and use them to guide priorities;

› create a culture of learning at the library;
› apply courage, curiosity, and creativity to cope with challenges;
› ask the right questions to get the right answers;
› draw out creative ideas from both staff and the community; and › use creativity exercises for both individual and group problem solving.

Confessions of a Book Reviewer: The Best of Carte Blanche

Michael Cart; Foreword by Francesca Lia Block | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1645-2

“A whimsical romp . . . Fellow lovers of books and young adult literature will relish this collection. It is like taking an enthusiastic walk through the mind of Michael Cart.” —VOYA

Spotlighting Cart’s unique perspective as both devoted book reviewer and self-proclaimed book addict, this “Carte Blanche” compilation offers readers the chance to trace the blossoming of YA lit into a bona fide phenomenon that continues to grow in popularity. In the columns gathered here, he explores

› reading, writing, and book collections and collecting;
› the past, present and future of YA lit;
› a multitude of genres, including historical fiction, fantasy, science fiction, humor, and comics; and › memories of notable figures in the world of publishing through tributes and memorials.

These pieces remain as engaging and fun to read as when they first appeared.

The No-nonsense Guide to Born-Digital Content
Heather Ryan and Walker Sampson | PRINT: 978-1-78330-195-9

Providing continued, sustainable access to a wide array of born-digital content is a challenge, particularly because of the broad and highly technical skills needed to build and sustain born-digital content management workflows. This new guide will usher students and practitioners into this area with confidence. It explains step-by-step processes for developing and implementing born-digital content workflows in library and archive settings of all sizes and includes a range of case studies collected from institutions internationally. Key topics include

- types of digital storage media and their differences and similarities with traditional content;
- the various sources of born-digital content and how they are appraised for a collection;
- retrieving and preparing content for a library or archive;
- storage systems and archival arrangement philosophies;
- description, preservation, and access;
- designing workflows for born-digital collection processing; and
- strategies and philosophies to keep up as technologies change.

Academic Librarianship, Second Edition
G. Edward Evans and Stacey Greenwell | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1563-9

This “comprehensive overview” (Journal of Access Services), has been thoroughly revised and updated to provide a timely exploration of the characteristics of academic librarianship and its place in the ever-changing environment of higher education. Evans and Greenwell offer authoritative coverage of

- teaching faculty roles and the status of the academic librarian;
- governance and the growing tension on some campuses between faculty and administration;
- curriculum, with a discussion of the balance between general education requirements and applied courses;
- collections, data management, digitization, and metadata;
- scholarly communication, plus alternative models such as open educational resources (OERs);
- providing quality service, and the role of user experience (UX) in assessment;
- ACRL's Information Literacy Framework;
- classrooms, common learning spaces, and other facilities; and
- staffing and professional development.

Government Information Essentials
Edited by Susanne Caro
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1597-4

“A worthwhile acquisition.” —Technicalities

Because government information is useful and pervasive in nearly every kind of library, more and more librarians of all types need to know how to work effectively with federal, state, and international resources. This volume provides real-world insight into the work and collections of this discipline.

Metaliterate Learning for the Post-Truth World
Thomas P. Mackey and Trudi E. Jacobson; Foreword by Troy A. Swanson
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1776-3

Metaliteracy, Mackey and Jacobson’s revolutionary model that reframes information literacy, is especially well suited as a framework for ensuring that learners can successfully navigate the proliferation of fake news, questionable content, and outright denialism of facts in today’s information morass. Applying the newest version of the Metaliteracy Goals and Learning Objectives, including the four domains of metaliterate learning, and featuring contributions from a variety of information literacy instructors, educators, librarians, and faculty, the chapters in this book

› discuss the social, political, and ethical dimensions of information creation, distribution, and use;
› employ case studies to demonstrate how metaliteracy prepares learners to read online information with a critical eye, and apply metacognitive thinking to the consumption of all information;
› explore how to guard against post-truth influences and make purposeful and responsible contributions to the social media ecosystem as active participants;
› examine out-of-context images paired with misleading text, a prevalent feature of the misinformation frequently shared via social media; and › situates metaliteracy in such contexts as the academic library, a science class, fiction writing, digital storytelling, and a theater arts course.

Literacy Engagement through Peritextual Analysis
Edited by Shelbie Witte, Don Latham, and Melissa Gross | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1768-8

published in partnership with National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE)

The concept of peritextual analysis teaches readers how to evaluate information and sources using elements that precede or follow the body of the text. A work’s Preface, Afterword, dust jacket, and bibliography are only some of the elements that can be used to help readers connect with and understand the main text. Speaking directly to librarians and educators working with K-16 students, this book

› outlines the Peritextual Literacy Framework and explains its utility as a teaching and thinking tool;
› defines components such as production elements, promotional elements, navigational elements, intratextual elements, supplemental elements, and documentary elements, offering examples drawn from both print and non-print texts;
› presents several case studies showing peritextual analysis in action, ranging from young adult nonfiction in the classroom to strengthening students’ visual literacy skills by critically comparing and contrasting two graphic novel covers; and › examines how the functions of peritext and the Peritextual Literacy Framework exist within online news articles and other non-print texts.
Fake News and Alternative Facts: Information Literacy in a Post-Truth Era

Nicole A. Cooke
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1636-0

Talk of so-called fake news, what it is and what it isn’t, is front and center across the media landscape, with new calls for the public to acquire appropriate research and evaluation skills and become more information savvy. But none of this is new for librarians and information professionals, particularly for those who teach information literacy. Cooke, a recipient of the 2017 ALA Achievement in Library Diversity Research Award, believes that the current situation represents a golden opportunity for librarians to impart these important skills to patrons, regardless of their age or experience. In this Special Report, readers will

- learn more about the rise of fake news, particularly those information behaviors that have perpetuated its spread;
- discover techniques to identify fake news, especially online; and
- explore methods to help library patrons of all ages think critically about information, teaching them ways to separate fact from fiction.

Information literacy is a key skill for all news consumers, and this Special Report shows how librarians can make a difference by helping patrons identify misinformation.

Teaching Media Literacy, Second Edition

Belinha S. De Abreu; Foreword by Michelle Ciulla Lipkin; Preface by Denise E. Agosto
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1721-3

There has never been a more urgent need for an incisive examination of the crucial role librarians and other educators can play in teaching the skills necessary to access, analyze, evaluate, and create media. Media literate youth and adults are better able to understand the complex messages emanating from television, movies, radio, the internet, news outlets, magazines, books, billboards, video games, music, and all other forms of media. In this book, international expert De Abreu melds advice from a diverse array of practitioners and subject experts with her own research findings to examine how consuming media and technology impacts the learning of K–12 students, tackling such paramount issues as

- fake news/alternative facts;
- critical thinking
- digital literacy and digital citizenship;
- social inclusion and equity;
- global interconnectedness; and
- social justice and advocacy.

Inside, readers will find a wealth of intelligently crafted, ready-to-use lesson plans and activities designed to help promote critical thinking skills for K-12 students, making this a perfect teaching resource for school and public librarians, educators, and literacy instructors.
The Indispensable Academic Librarian: Teaching and Collaborating for Change

Michelle Reale | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1638-4

Far from being auxiliary to the learning cycle, academic librarians are educators in their own right. If the primary challenge before them is to change how they’re perceived within their institutions, Reale proposes, the key lies in becoming a proactive teacher and collaborator. Blending practice-based evidence with a warm approach, Reale

› discusses the changing perception of academic librarians, how they are seen and how they see themselves;
› shows how academic librarians can and should assert their rightful place in the learning cycle;
› looks at how to match teaching goals with academic librarians’ mission;
› advocates for the indispensable roles the academic librarian should play, including co-collaborator, one-on-one research consultant, expert-at-large in non-structured spaces such as the dorm or student lounge, and embedded librarian in the classroom; and › offers talking points for self-advocacy, looking at the many ways academic librarians are making a difference.

Reflective Teaching, Effective Learning: Instructional Literacy for Library Educators, Second Edition

Char Booth | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1501-1

Booth’s practical approach to developing personal instructional literacy, a method that empowers library professionals at any level of experience to become better and more confident educators, made the first edition of this text a runaway bestseller. Updated to expand its focus to more fully include program coordinators and library administrators, the new second edition cements its status as a peerless resource for day-to-day use as well as LIS courses. Laying the foundation for effective teaching, Booth outlines a framework that includes › tools for improving learning in the moment and developing a teacher identity through self-assessment;

› evidence-based strategies in learning and instructional research;
› methods for evaluating and integrating technology in learning using a practical toolkit approach;
› a systematic and outcomes-based process for developing and assessing learning experiences; and
› new material on strategy and scaffolding, with discussions of collaboration, institutional partnerships, working with faculty, and program development through curriculum mapping.

Fundamentals for the Instruction Coordinator

ALa Fundamentals Series

Caitlin A. Bagley | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1637-7

An instruction coordinator does more than just oversee the entire department of instruction librarians. The role also requires you to function as the assessment lead, training and directing the tone of how instruction will be taught, performed, and evaluated, as well as perform outreach to departments and faculty outside the library to find ways to make connections for future instruction. In a concise, straightforward manner Bagley outlines exactly what you need to know as a new instruction coordinator, including › an overview of library instruction and the primary stakeholders;

› guidance on key duties such as training, management, communications, and assessment;
› instruction coordinator best practices drawn from librarians working in a range of settings; and › tips on how to integrate what you’ve learned into your program.

Bagley presents the perfect primer for instruction coordinators at all levels of experience, from those who may have had little prior supervisory or management experience to those who simply want a refresher on new methods.
Expert Internet Searching, Fifth Edition

Phil Bradley | PRINT: 978-1-78330-247-5

Covering everything from the basics to running advanced and complex searches using a variety of different search engines, the book enables readers to gain a nuanced and full understanding of online search, including trends such as social media search, fake news, and discussion of the authority and validity of search results. Key topics include

› an introduction to the internet and search engines;
› the Google experience;
› other free-text search engines;
› directory- and category-based search engines;
› multi- and meta-search engines;
› social media search engines;
› visual searching;
› people-based resources;
› academic and other specialized search engines;
› news-based search engines;
› multimedia search engines;
› search apps and the effect of mobile search on the industry; and › search utilities and resources to make life easier.

Digital Literacy Unpacked

Katharine Reedy and Jo Parker | PRINT: 978-1-78330-197-3

This book brings together a wide range of diverse perspectives on digital and information literacy that provide a comprehensive blend of theory and practice. The authors demonstrate the importance of digital literacy in all areas of life, the centrality of critical thinking (a key element of both digital and information literacy), and the essential role of library and information professionals in leading digital literacy developments. Highlighting case studies from a range of international practitioners, this book covers such key topics as

› approaches to digital literacy, including discussions of terminology, institutional approaches, and existing frameworks;
› an overview of digital literacy in higher education and examples of good practice;
› openness, digital literacy, and an examination of OERs and MOOCs;
› the myth of digital natives;
› developing digital capabilities for staff;
› professional development for librarians; and › digital inclusion and lifelong employability in a digital world.

Theories and Practices of Information Literacy

Charles Inskip | PRINT: 978-1-78330-135-5

From politicians and policymakers through funders and education providers to cultural heritage organizations, employers, community groups, and social activists there is a growing awareness of the impact of digitization on engagement with information. Beginning with a recent history of information literacy (IL) to give context, this book then provides a detailed review of theoretical models and practical approaches using real life examples from the wide information landscape. Examining key issues around IL from an academic and professional perspective, this book

› provides a detailed understanding of the theory and practice of IL and associated areas;
› identifies and discusses the challenges presented by the lifelong learning nature of IL in a digital world; and › enables the development of appropriate skillsets of library and information professionals as central players in the delivery of IL in education, workplace and society.

Jo Webb and Chris Powis  |  PRINT: 978-1-85604-949-8

This fully updated edition of the best-selling textbook shows librarians how to empower their library users and teach information skills.

Informed by best teaching practice and contemporary learning theories, the text covers both the theory and practice of library instruction. Each chapter has two parts: a section explaining the principles of learning and teaching, followed by a section analyzing successful learning and teaching activities, rooted in personal experience. The book draws best practice examples and new case studies from a broad range of sectors and organizations.

Each of the main chapters is based around one of the key elements of successful learning and teaching, specifically applied to the LIS context. New and expanded topics for this edition include discussion of distance learning and technology-enabled learning, and when and how to buy-in commercial services to support your teaching.

The New Instruction Librarian: A Workbook for Trainers and Learners

Candice Benjes-Small and Rebecca K. Miller  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1456-4  |  e-book available

“A solid overview of academic instruction librarianship for both supervisors and novices.”
—Library Journal

Grounded in research on teaching and learning from numerous disciplines, not just library literature, this book

› shows how to set up new instruction librarians for success, with advice on completing an environmental scan, strategies for recruiting efficiently, and a training checklist;
› walks readers step by step through training a new hire or someone new to instruction;
› explores the different roles an instruction librarian is usually expected to play, such as educator, project manager, instructional designer, and teaching partner;
› demonstrates the importance of performance evaluation and management, including assessment and continuing education, both formal and informal; and › provides guided reading lists for further in-depth study of a topic.

The One-Shot Library Instruction Survival Guide, Second Edition

Heidi E. Buchanan and Beth A. McDonough  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1486-1

“Inspired solutions for difficult assignments, vignettes from actual librarians in the field, assessment techniques, and suggestions for how to make information literacy relevant to students . . . [it] will inspire instruction librarians to move beyond traditional bibliographic instruction.”—Reference & User Services Quarterly

The ACRL Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education is good news for one-shot instructors. With its six frames and conceptual approach you’re freed from a long list of outcomes and can instead focus on big ideas. The newest edition of this concise guide will help you stay organized and use your limited time wisely, with guidance that will help students sharpen their critical thinking skills, use better sources, improve their understanding, and avoid plagiarism.
Learner-Centered Pedagogy: Principles and Practice

Kevin Michael Klipfel and Dani Brecher Cook | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1557-8

"Succinctly demonstrates the need for empathy in self-directed learning. This title is compelling in design; theory and practicality entwine, and infographics generate intentional engagement . . . Highly recommended." — ARBA

With an eye on everyday library work, the authors offer concrete, empirically-based strategies to connect with learners at all levels. Offering plentiful examples of pedagogy in action, this book covers:

- 6 cognitive principles for organizing information literacy instruction, with sample worksheets and organization tools for instruction planning;
- how to establish rapport and kindle learners’ motivation;
- tactics for transcending “cite 5 sources” and other uninspiring research assignments;
- educational evidence debunking the mythical perception that because students are skilled at computers and mobile technology, they already know how to do research;
- questions to keep in mind for inspiring autonomous learning; and
- the power of story, as described by Joan Didion, Brené Brown’s Ted Talk, and educational psychology research.

Metaliteracy: Reinventing Information Literacy to Empower Learners

“A broad audience of educators at many levels will benefit from this well constructed, formatted, and developed study of how best to reach today's learners.” — Catholic Library World

Today’s learners communicate, create, and share information using a range of information technologies such as social media, blogs, microblogs, wikis, mobile devices and apps, virtual worlds, and MOOCs. The concept of metaliteracy expands the scope of traditional information skills (determine, access, locate, understand, produce, and use information) to include the collaborative production and sharing of information in participatory digital environments (collaborate, produce, and share) prevalent in today’s world. This book builds on decades of practice while recognizing the knowledge required for an expansive and interactive information environment.

Metaliteracy in Practice

Edited by Trudi E. Jacobson and Thomas P. Mackey | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1379-6

“The practical applications of metaliteracy described in this book will be incredibly useful for anyone developing assignments and evaluation frameworks to be used in teaching across disciplines, whether they are starting to plan a new course from scratch, or simply want to rework an existing course to better teach and evaluate for metaliteracy skills.” — College & Research Libraries

In their earlier book Metaliteracy, the authors offered an original framework for engaging learners as reflective and collaborative participants in today’s complex information environments. Now, they move that comprehensive structure for information literacy firmly into real-world practice, highlighting the groundbreaking work of librarians and faculty who are applying the metaliteracy model in distinctive teaching and learning settings. The case studies presented in this valuable resource demonstrate how librarians and educators can help students effectively communicate, create, and share information in today’s participatory digital environments.
Teaching Information Literacy Reformed: 50+ Framework-Based Exercises for Creating Information-Literate Learners

Joanna M. Burkhardt | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1397-0

The six threshold concepts outlined in the Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education are an altogether new way of looking at information literacy. In this important new book, bestselling author and expert instructional librarian Burkhardt decodes the Framework, putting its conceptual approach into straightforward language while offering more than 50 classroom-ready, Framework-based exercises. Guiding instructors towards helping students cross each threshold, this book

› thoroughly addresses each threshold concept, scaffolding from the beginner level to the intermediate level;
› includes exercises that can be used in the one-shot timeframe as well as others designed for longer class sessions and semester-long courses;
› offers best practices in creating learning outcomes, assessments, rubrics, and teaching tricks; and › looks at how learning, memory, and transfer of learning applies to the teaching of information literacy.

Teaching Information Literacy: 50 Standards-Based Exercises for College Students, Second Edition

Joanna M. Burkhardt and Mary C. MacDonald with Andrée J. Rathemacher | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1053-5

“Deserves wide circulation in colleges and perusal by any instructors of freshmen.”
—Catholic Library World

From high schools and colleges to technical and graduate schools, research involves making sense of information: learning the basics of planning, winnowing, and evaluating the quality of sources. As information proliferates, it’s tempting to use the handiest tool rather than working to identify the best one. But there’s a better way! Updated for today’s ever-expanding world of electronic information, the second edition of Teaching Information Literacy: 50 Standards-Based Exercises for College Students is the best single resource for fundamental information literacy instruction. The 50 standards-based exercises inside cover the basics of planning, collecting, and evaluating.

Visual Literacy for Libraries: A Practical, Standards-Based Guide

Nicole E. Brown, Kaila Bussert, Denise Hattwig, and Ann Medaille | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1381-9

“Required reading for any library professional, from students to seasoned librarians, who participate in teaching activities.”—Library Journal

The importance of images and visual media in today’s culture is changing what it means to be literate in the 21st century. Digital technologies have made it possible for almost anyone to create and share visual media. Yet the pervasiveness of images and visual media does not necessarily mean that individuals are able to critically view, use, and produce visual content. The ACRL Visual Literacy Competency Standards for Higher Education were developed to address these distinct characteristics of images and visual media. Based on those standards, this book provides librarians and instructors with the tools, strategies, and confidence to apply visual literacy in a library context. Readers will not only learn about ways to develop students’ visual literacy, but also how to use visual materials to make their instruction more engaging.
The Data Librarian’s Handbook
Robin Rice and John Southall  |  print: 978-1-78330-047-1 (softcover)  |  Print: 978-1-78330-098-3 (hardcover)
“Covers a large amount of interesting terrain in thoughtful and accessible ways.”—LSE Review of Books
Offering contemporary case studies from a range of institutions and disciplines, tips for best practice, study aids and links to key resources, this book covers such topics as

› the evolution of data libraries and data archives;
› handling data compared to other forms of information;
› managing and curating data to ensure effective use and longevity;
› how to incorporate data literacy into mainstream library instruction and information literacy training;
› how to develop an effective institutional research data management (RDM) policy and infrastructure; and › how to support and review a data management plan (DMP) for a project.

Introduction to Information Behaviour
Nigel Ford  |  PRINT: 978-1-85604-850-7
“Simplifies the confusing, chaotic picture of information behavior . . . an ably useful and sophisticated rendering of a complex research field.”—Journal of the Association for Information Science and Technology
This landmark text is an essential primer for students and practitioners interested in information seeking, needs and behavior, user studies and information literacy. Ford uses a combination of theory and practical context to map out what information behavior is and what we currently know about it, before addressing how it can be better understood in the future. He argues that new understandings of information behavior research may help maximize the quality and effectiveness of the way information is presented, sought, discovered, evaluated and used.

The book introduces the key concepts, issues and themes of information behavior, illustrates them using key research studies, and provides a clear path through the complex maze of theories and models. Case studies are included throughout the text and each chapter concludes with a round-up of what has been covered, highlighting the implications for professional information practice.

Information Literacy in the Workplace: New Perspectives
Edited by Marc Forster  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-132-4
In today’s information-driven workplace, information professionals must know when research evidence or relevant legal, business, personal, or other information is required, how to find it, how to critique it, and how to integrate it into one’s knowledge base. Using a range of new perspectives, this book demonstrates several aspects of informational literacy’s presence and role in the contemporary workplace. Content covered includes

› examination of the value and impact of IL in the workplace;
› how IL is experienced remotely, beyond workplace boundaries;
› IL’s role in professional development;
› organizational learning and knowledge creation;
› developing information professional competencies; and
› how to unlock and create value using IL in the workplace.
Exploring Research Data Management
Andrew Cox and Eddy Varbaan  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-278-9

Research Data Management (RDM) has become a hot professional topic internationally because of changes in scholarship and governmental policies about the sharing of research data. This book provides an introduction to RDM for librarians and other support professionals. Starting by exploring the nature of research and the importance of data in the research process, the book reviews how RDM has developed over time, what typical research data services are, and how they relate to other research support services. After considering how a multi-professional support service can be created, it then examines the decisions that need to be made in designing different types of research data service, from local policy formulation and training to creating a data repository. This book will be useful reading for all students studying librarianship and information management, as well as librarians who are interested in learning more about RDM and developing research data services in their own institutions.

The Student’s Survival Guide to Research
Monty L. McAdoo  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1276-8

“Research can be taught, and this book offers beginning-to-end instructions . . . Highly recommended for high school and undergraduate students.”—Library Journal

Jumping head first into a research project is a surefire recipe for stress and confusion. But if you’re a newbie, how do you know where to begin, let alone where to go from there? Library instruction expert McAdoo has penned a primer specifically tailored to novice researchers, offering beginning-to-end guidance for every step of the research process, from planning and preparing to conducting and writing. Students will appreciate the book’s clear and concise language regarding the research process, while teachers, faculty, YA staff, and academic librarians will find it a valuable tool for information literacy.

Dynamic Research Support for Academic Libraries
Edited by Starr Hoffman  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1469-4

“Hoffman’s collection showcases how we can add long-term value for our users by focusing on going ‘deeper’ and delivering comprehensive specialist services which tap into a very real need.”—Libfocus

This book will enrich and expand your vision of research support in academic libraries by

- inspiring you to think creatively about new services;
- sparking ideas of potential collaborations within and outside the library, increasing awareness of functional areas that are potential key partners;
- providing specific examples of new services, as well as the decision-making and implementation process; and
- encouraging you to take a broad view of research support rather than thinking of research and instruction services, metadata creation, and data services as separate initiatives.
Archival Futures Series
Series editors: Bethany Anderson and Amy Cooper Cary

Archival Futures, a new book series published jointly by the Society of American Archivists (SAA) and ALA Neal-Schuman, will critically engage issues related to archives as, and for, the public good. Books in the series combine provocative arguments with practical insights, examining professional values and current innovations in archival and library practice.

The archives profession has long been seen as primarily concerned with the past. Archival Futures points to the responsibility that archivists and allied information professionals have to shape the present and future. This series seeks to engage with the urgent questions embedded within archival work and processes, inviting discussion about the social responsibility of citizens to shape a historical record that better documents all aspects of the human experience.

A Matter of Facts: The Value of Evidence in an Information Age
ARCHIVAL FUTURES
Laura A. Millar | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1771-8

The safeguarding of authentic facts is essential, especially now that digital technologies have ushered in a post-truth world in which “alternative facts” can be so easily accepted as valid. And because facts matter, archives matter. In this urgent manifesto, archives luminary Millar makes the case that accurate evidence is crucial in supporting and fostering a society that is respectful, democratic, and self-aware. Millar’s eye-opening treatise explains the concept of evidence and discusses the ways in which records, archives, and data are not just useful tools for our daily existence but also essential sources of evidence both today and in the future; includes plentiful examples that illustrate the critical role evidence plays in upholding rights, enforcing responsibilities, tracing family or community stories, and capturing and sharing memories; and examines the impact of digital technologies on how records and information are created and used.

Do Archives Have Value?

Edited by Michael Moss and David Thomas | PRINT: 978-1-78330-332-8

How does an archive establish and measure value? Discussing the various valuation methods available, and their suitability for use by archives and special collections, this book also assesses the impact of the transition to the digital in archival holdings. Value is explored in a range of different cultural and organizational contexts through case studies from a range of countries, including Australia, China, Japan, Malawi, Kenya, Russia and Thailand. Key chapters discuss

- the value of the Clinton emails for research;
- the value of Russian archives before and after revolution;
- the value of archives in public inquiries, using the case of the Hillsborough tragedy as an example;
- the value of Find & Connect, Australia’s response to child abuse;
- the Chinese long tradition of recordkeeping;
- why and how to value;
- valuing digital content; and
- the commercialization of archives.

Community Archives, Volume 2: Sustaining Memory

Edited by Jeannette A. Bastian and Andrew Flinn | PRINT: 978-1-78330-350-2

Over ten years have passed since the first volume of Community Archives. Inspired by continued research as well as by the formal recognition of community archives in the UK, the community archives movement has become an increasing important area of research, recognition, and appreciation by archivists, archival scholars, and others worldwide. Increasingly the subject of papers and conferences, community archives are now seen as being in the vanguard of social concerns and markers of community-based activism. They exemplify the ongoing evolution of “professional” archival (and heritage) practice. This new volume of Community Archives reflects the latest research and also includes practical case studies on the challenges of building and sustaining community archives. The argument that they are integral to the ability of people to articulate and assert their identity is discussed at length. Practitioners, researchers, and academics in the archives and records community as well as historians and other scholars concerned with community building and social issues will find much of value inside this book.

Records and Information Management, Second Edition

Patricia C. Franks | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1716-9

As Information Management put it, “On the strength of its currency and coverage alone, Franks’ book is poised to take over as the recommended go-to reference for both students and RIM professionals for many years to come.” The new second edition cements this work’s status as an up-to-date classic. Updated and expanded to address emerging technologies, most notably blockchain, and evolving standards and practices, the text addresses such key topics as

- the origins and development of records and information;
- the discipline of information governance and developing a strategic records management plan;
- retention strategies, inactive records management, archives, and long-term preservation;
- access, storage, and retrieval;
- electronic records and electronic records management systems; and
- the latest on rapidly evolving technologies such as web records, social media, and mobile devices.

Ethics for Records and Information Management

Norman A. Mooradian | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1639-1

The scope and reach of information has expanded dramatically over the past 30 years, and the consequences of these changes to records and information management (RIM) professionals are profound. RIM professionals require a professional ethics to guide them in their daily practice and to form a basis for developing and implementing organizational policies, and Mooradian’s new book provides a rigorous outline of such an ethics. Taking an authoritative principles/rules based approach to the subject, this book comprehensively addresses

- the structure of ethics, outlining principles, moral rules, judgements, and exceptions;
- ethical reasoning, from meaning and logic to dilemmas and decision methods;
- the ethical core of RIM, discussing key topics such as organizational context, the positive value of accountability, conflicts of interest, and confidentiality;
- important ethical concerns like copyright and intellectual property, whistleblowing, information leaks, disclosure, and privacy; and
- the relationship between RIM ethics and information governance.

Digital Archives: Management, Use and Access

Edited by Milena Dobreva | PRINT: 978-1-85604-934-4

This landmark edited collection offers a wide-ranging overview of how rapid technological changes and the push for providing greater access to digitized cultural heritage holdings are changing the landscape of archives.

Providing inspirational and informative chapters by international experts, this book will help digital archivists and other information professionals understand the drivers for change in archives and the implications. Sustainable business models for cultural production, the digitization of analog cultural heritage, and the related IPR issues surrounding the reuse of digital objects and data for research, education, advocacy, and art all receive full attention. Contributors also present state-of-the-art solutions in building digital archives on networked infrastructure, trusted digital repositories to ensure long-term access, and tools to serve emerging needs in digital humanities.
Digital Humanities: An Introduction for Librarians

Edited by Sally Chambers  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-129-4

Librarians have an important role to play in the burgeoning world of digital humanities and digital scholarship. This book provides an accessible, introductory guide to digital humanities with the librarian in mind. After giving a brief history of the field, it dives deeper into digital scholarly activity, involving active researchers in the field and using real research projects as case studies throughout. This book

› provides an overview of how “the digital” has affected a wide range of humanities disciplines, from literary studies and history to digital musicology;
› previews key tools and methodologies, including digital scholarly editing, social network analysis, 3D modelling of archaeological data, and others;
› looks at existing digital humanities activities at a variety of libraries across the UK, Europe, and the United States; and › discusses professional development and training opportunities involving digital humanities at library schools, training programs, and professional associations.

Archival Futures

Edited by Caroline Brown  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-182-9

This new book draws on the contributions of a range of international experts to consider the current archival landscape and imagine the archive of the future. Firmly rooted in current professional debate and scholarship, it offers thought-provoking chapters that will challenge and inspire archivists to encourage debate about their futures. Among this collection’s crucial topics:

› the role of archives in relation to individuals, organizations, communities, and society;
› how appraisal, arrangement, description, and access might be affected in the future;
› the impact of changing societal expectations on access to information, how information is exchanged, and how things are recorded and remembered;
› the place of traditional archives and what “the archive” is or might become;
› challenges and opportunities offered by other information, cultural, or IT-related professions and the future role of the archive profession; and › truth and post-truth: archives as authentic and reliable evidence.

Adrian Brown  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-053-2

This second edition has been updated to cover key developments such as advances in the archiving and analysis of social media, the challenges and opportunities of mobile technology and Linked Open Data, recognition of the vast potential of web archives to support research, and the adoption of web archiving in the commercial world to support regulatory compliance. Brown also addresses such important topics as

› the development of web archiving, with added case studies from the British Library, TNA, Eastern Europe, and Asia;
› selection policies, including discussion of new types of content to archive;
› automatic crawl definition and refinement, similarities and differences between library, archive, and museum approaches to web archiving, and other preservation issues;
› delivery to users, with new case studies for web archives, journalism and media use, education, academic research data, linked data, and government transparency; and › legislation, with a look at new copyright regulations.
Exhibits in Archives and Special Collections Libraries

Jessica Lacher-Feldman | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1657-5

In this book longtime special collections exhibits curator Lacher-Feldman advises archivists at all levels on developing enlightening and entertaining exhibits. She describes each step of the exhibit process, providing straightforward tips on

- developing innovative exhibit ideas;
- formulating exhibit policies and procedures for your institution;
- crafting well-written and visually interesting exhibit labels;
- branding and designing exhibits; and
- promoting exhibits through conventional media, social media, and giveaway items.

Also included are case studies that detail exhibits at a variety of institutions, sample documents and forms, a literature review, and a guide to exhibit supplies. With this comprehensive resource, you’ll learn how to develop exhibits that help you to better connect with your audience and advocate for your repository. “Proceed and be bold” with exhibit development, and gratifying, inspiring results will transpire.

Moving Image and Sound Collections for Archivists
Anthony Coccio  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1740-4

Winner of the 2018 Waldo Gifford Leland Award

This book is for every archivist (or archivist-in-training) who has opened a box or file cabinet or otherwise unearthed some carrier of moving image and sound and has wondered what to do. You may have not recognized the format, you may have not known if it held video or audio, and you may have not known how to describe the item. It’s even possible that you did not recognize it as a carrier of moving image and sound. Most archivists encounter and most archives contain some form of moving image and sound material. These can include recordings of events on video, oral histories captured on audiotape, and films created by independent filmmakers. Here’s practical guidance on how to preserve and make accessible the moving image and sound record, from the most relevant legacy formats to born-digital formats. Gorgeously designed and illustrated.

Perspectives on Women’s Archives
Edited by Tanya Zanish-Belcher with Anke Voss  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-1656-8

Women’s archives hold a significant place in the historical record, illuminating stories of individuals who had an impact on our past in both powerful and quiet ways. The history of the archives themselves and the struggle to achieve equal representation within the historical record also tell a valuable story, one that deftly examines American culture and society over the past few centuries.

In Perspectives on Women’s Archives, 18 essays written by noted archivists and historians illustrate the origins of a women-centered history, the urgent need to locate records that highlight the diverse experiences of women, and the effort to document women’s experiences. The essays also expose the need for renewed collaboration between archivists and historians, the challenges related to the accessibility of women’s collections, and the development of community archives.

Archives in Libraries: What Librarians and Archivists Need to Know to Work Together
Jeannette A. Bastian, Megan Sniffin-Marinoff, and Donna Webber  |  PRINT: 978-0-8389-4721-0

This excellent volume examines the relationship between archives and libraries and how archivists and librarians can work together. It surveys basic archival concepts, policies, and best practices for librarians and library directors, in addition to how archivists working in libraries can describe their work and advocate for archival needs. It details the differences and similarities between libraries and archives and how the relationship can be negotiated, covering mission, professional roots, identity, values, concepts, tasks, practices, and professional standards, as well as educating archivists and librarians; functions and responsibilities like collecting, donor relations, records management, appraisal, processing, preservation, reference, outreach, and establishing, planning, and managing new archives; and ethical, information literacy, digital access, and digital preservation issues.
Open Licensing for Cultural Heritage
Gill Hamilton and Fred Saunderson | PRINT: 978-1-78330-185-0

“A necessary and invaluable instructional reference.”—MBR Bookwatch

This explanatory guide introduces and explains the use of open licenses for content, data, and metadata in libraries and other cultural heritage organizations. Using rich background information, international case studies, and examples of best practice, this book explores the organizational benefits of open licensing and the open movement, including the importance of content discoverability, arguments for wider collections impact and access, and more ethical and principled arguments related to protection of public content and the public domain. Content covered includes:

- an accessible introduction to relevant concepts, including Creative Commons, attribution, model licenses, and license versions;
- distinctions between content that has been openly licensed and content that is in the public domain;
- the benefits and risks associated with open licensing; and
- a range of practical case studies from organizations including Newcastle Libraries, the University of Edinburgh, and the British Library.

Management Skills for Archivists and Records Managers
Edited by Louise Ray and Melinda Haunton | PRINT: 978-1-85604-584-1

This book introduces the range of management skills employed by records managers and archivists, and shows how they may be applied, adding value both in terms of personal professional development and in the organizational benefits of service delivery, excellence, accountability, and transparency in both large and small archive and records management units.

Written by established authors in the field, this handbook of practical advice is underpinned with current thinking and theory, and draws on experience of teaching management skills to graduate archivists and records managers and on practical professional experience. Its coverage includes:

- identifying management skills for archivists and records managers;
- corporate and strategic planning;
- managing projects successfully;
- managing money and other resources;
- managing people;
- providing accountability through performance measurement;
- advocating for archives and records management; and
- developing personal management skills.

Records, Information and Data
Geoffrey Yeo
PRINT: 978-1-78330-226-0

In this book Yeo sets today’s recordkeeping and archival practices in their historical context. He examines changing perceptions of the nature and purpose of records management and archival work, notions of convergence among information-related disciplines, and archivists’ and records managers’ attitudes to information and its governance.

Introduction to Documentation Studies
Niels Lund
PRINT: 978-1-78330-189-8

This groundbreaking book introduces a new approach to the documentation, communication, and information field: documentation studies, a new discipline within the overall information studies umbrella. It outlines the historical background and the theoretical foundation for the discipline by giving insight into documentation issues and processes from early modern society to today’s digital age.
Laura A. Millar | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1606-3

Written in clear language with lively examples, the book outlines fundamental archival principles and practices, introduces core concepts, and explains best practices. This revised edition contains expanded discussion of the impact of digital technologies on archival materials and practice and an examination of the changing role of the archivist in the digital age. Topics addressed in the book include:

- the nature of archives and archival institutions;
- the role of archival service as a matter of trust;
- core archival concepts such as provenance, original order, and respect des fonds;
- practical guidance in the execution of central archival tasks, including appraisal, preservation, arrangement, description, and reference and access; and
- discussion about the changing role and responsibilities of the archival institution and archival practitioner, as digital technologies fundamentally transform how records and archives are created, captured, preserved, used, and shared.

Participatory Heritage

Edited by Henriette Roued-Cunliffe and Andrea Copeland
PRINT: 978-1-78330-123-2

“It will be thought-provoking for most readers, whether around the boundaries of our professional self-definition, the need to listen to communities in developing our work with them, or our understanding of linkages across the spectrum of what may be defined as heritage practice.”—Archives and Records
Streaming video at academic libraries is here to stay. In fact, a recent study shows about two-thirds of students use video as part of their academic study and three-quarters use it to supplement their reading. But as many libraries already know, video licensing can break your budget. Serving the needs of both students and faculty requires a balanced, strategic approach. This concise collection from the Association for Library Collections & Technical Services (ALCTS) offers guidance on such topics as

› selection criteria for video;
› seven common business models;
› practical workflows, from selection and licensing to setting up access;
› video-specific licensing considerations, including hosting and access restrictions;
› the TEACH Act and classroom use;
› using vendor analytic tools to improve discovery; and › conducting a cost per use assessment.

With the help of this book’s expert advice, academic and research libraries will be well equipped for meeting their institution's video streaming needs.

Digital Preservation in Libraries: Preparing for a Sustainable Future
Edited by Jeremy Myntti and Jessalyn Zoom | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1713-8

In today’s information landscape, there are fewer topics that more urgently demand expansive discourse than digital preservation, which touches on everything from technology to copyright. The Association for Library Collections and Technical Services (ALCTS) steps up to the challenge with this comprehensive overview. Global in scope, it features case studies and contributions that discuss such key issues as

- the history of digital preservation;
- digital preservation and information ethics;
- strategies for getting started, sustaining digitization programs, and performing evaluation;
- fine-tuning digital preservation workflows, with a look at Digital Streams Matrix for analyzing pathways and tasks;
- preserving e-books, mobile device data, and other specific types of materials;
- collaborative efforts in digital preservation, including jargon-free techniques for engaging non-technical colleagues in digital legacy tools and processes; and
- the copyright, legal, and administrative issues connected with digital preservation.

Fundamentals of Collection Development and Management, Fourth Edition
Peggy Johnson | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1641-4

Technical Services Quarterly declared that the third edition “must now be considered the essential textbook for collection development and management . . . the first place to go for reliable and informative advice.” For the fourth edition expert instructor and librarian Johnson has revised and freshened this resource to ensure its timeliness and continued excellence. Thorough consideration is given to

- traditional management topics such as organization of the collection, weeding, and staffing;
- cooperative collection development and management;
- licenses, negotiation, contracts, maintaining productive relationships with vendors and publishers, and other important purchasing and budgeting topics;
- key issues such as the ways that changes in information delivery and access technologies continue to reshape the discipline, the evolving needs and expectations of library users, and new roles for subject specialists, all illustrated using updated examples and data; and
- marketing, liaison activities, and outreach.
Valuing Your Collection: A Practical Guide for Museums, Libraries and Archives
Freda Matassa  |  PRINT: 978-1-78330-187-4
The subject of valuation has always been challenging for museums and public collections and is becoming more urgent as monetary values of many items continue to break records. There is an increase in lending and borrowing, meaning more loans which require a value for insurance, while recent government initiatives such as Lifetime Giving mean that donations to the nation need to have a monetary value for tax purposes. At a time when loans and exhibitions are expanding to all corners of the world, while lenders are becoming more risk-averse, Valuing Your Collection addresses the issues and offers solutions. A well-known UK expert on collections management, in this book Matassa discusses › issues around the valuation of public collections;

› assigning values to individual objects and valuing an entire collection;
› valuation law and insurance;
› examples from real life collections; and
› guides to valuing different types of items.

RDA Toolkit  ONLINE SUBSCRIPTION

Designed for the digital world and an expanding universe of metadata users, RDA: Resource Description and Access is the new, unified cataloging standard. The online RDA Toolkit subscription is the most effective way to interact with the standard. RDA Toolkit helps catalogers, metadata professionals, and other library staff transition to RDA with numerous features, including › searchable and browseable presentation of RDA instructions in English, French, Spanish, Italian, Catalan, Finnish, and German languages;

› editor tools that allow users to create, share, and access user generated content (workflows, maps, and a host of cataloging specific documents);
› access to a collection of policy statements from national libraries and professional groups; and › full MARC record examples of RDA cataloging.

RDA: Resource Description and Access Print—2015 Revision

PRINT: 978-0-8389-1346-8

The 2015 RDA Print Revision contains:

› A full accumulation of RDA—the revision replaces the previous version of RDA Print rather than being an update packet to that version. Numerous changes to the text of RDA have been made since the publication of the 2014 Revision. Cataloging practice described by RDA has not altered dramatically due to these changes, but a significant number of the pages in RDA Print were affected by the changes, making an RDA Print update packet impracticable.

NOTE: Before purchasing the 2015 print version, please know there will be a 2019 print version available later next year. The release date is TBD at this time. Please email rdatoolkit@ala.org with further questions.

Information Resource Description: Creating and Managing Metadata, Second Edition

Philip Hider | PRINT: 978-1-78330-223-9

This new edition offers a fully updated and expanded overview of the field of information organization, examining the description of information resources as both a product and process of the contemporary digital environment. Hider explains how the various elements and values of descriptive metadata support a set of common information retrieval functions across a wide range of environments. Through this unifying framework, his book provides an integrated commentary of the various fields and practices of information organization carried out by today’s information professionals and end-users. Key topics and updates to the first edition include

› discussion of big data vs. the traditional database model;
› an introduction to FRBR-LRM user tasks and their applications;
› expanded coverage of scholarly repositories and questions around Open Access;
› a new section on the history of information organization; and › expanded discussion of the functions, economics and management of metadata.
RDA: Strategies for Implementation, Second Edition
Magda El-Sherbini | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1508-0
Since its publication, thousands of catalogers, technical services librarians, and LIS students have benefited from the expert guidance provided by El-Sherbini’s guide. In this new edition, she completely updates her text to reflect the maturing landscape of RDA: Resource Description and Access. This book
› traces the history of RDA and the transition from AACR2, enumerating the differences and similarities between the standards;
› presents detailed strategies on implementing RDA, from general training tips to decision making, covering every aspect of daily practice;
› addresses FRBR-driven tasks, FRBR-Group relationships, and principles of FRAD, including how FRAD impacts the RDA application;
› features numerous handy checklists and worksheets to aid cataloging and reinforce learning;
› offers brand new chapters on Work and Expression, Work and Expression for Special Materials, Authorized Access Points, and Relationships Among Entities; and › provides updated guidance on getting the most out of RDA Toolkit.

Maxwell’s Handbook for RDA: Explaining and Illustrating RDA: Resource Description and Access Using MARC 21
Robert L. Maxwell | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1172-3
Winner of the 2014 ABC-CLIO Greenwood Award for the Best Book in Library Literature; Winner of the 2015 Association for Library Collections & Technical Services (ALCTS) Outstanding Publication Award
In this clear and comprehensive resource, cataloging expert Maxwell brings his trademark practical commentary to bear on the new, unified cataloging standard. Designed to interpret and explain RDA: Resource Description and Access, this handbook illustrates and applies the new cataloging rules in the MARC 21 environment for every type of information format. From books to electronic materials to music and beyond, Maxwell
› explains the conceptual grounding of RDA, including FRBR and FRAD;
› addresses the nuances of how cataloging will, and won’t, change in the MARC 21 environment;
› explores recording relationships, working with records of manifestations and items, and more; and › provides numerous sample records to illustrate RDA principles.

Social Tagging for Linking Data Across Environments
Edited by Diane Pennington and Louise Spiteri | PRINT: 978-1-78330-338-0
Social tagging, hashtags, and geotags are used across a variety of platforms (Twitter, Facebook, Tumblr, WordPress, Instagram) in different countries and cultures. This book, representing researchers and practitioners across different information professions, explores how social tags can link content across a variety of environments.

Most studies of social tagging have tended to focus on applications like library catalogues, blogs, and social bookmarking sites. This book, in setting out a theoretical background and the use of a series of case studies, explores the role of hashtags as a form of linked data—without the complex implementation of RDF and other Semantic Web technologies.

Social Tagging for Linking Data Across Environments will be useful reading for practicing library and information professionals who implement electronic access to collections, including catalogers, systems developers, information architects, and web developers, as well LIS students studying these subjects.
Practical Knowledge and Information Management

Katharine Schopflin and Matt Walsh | PRINT: 978-1-78330-335-9

This book provides a practical guide to implementing knowledge and information initiatives in the workplace. Drawing on case studies from practitioners in a range of different work environments, it outlines best practice, pitfalls, and advice on a range of topics, including making the business case, audits, establishing communities of practice, building knowledge bases and knowledge capture.

Many workplaces have moved from providing research support to knowledge services. Practical Knowledge and Information Management will help professionals provide those services, to improve existing techniques for knowledge sharing and capture and to help transition from the more traditional library model. Chapters are based on case studies drawn from across the knowledge management community in the UK, Ireland, and North America. Although not an edited collection, the book reflects contributions from workplaces in both the public and private arenas, including law, finance, government, nonprofit, academic, and business.

It will be useful reading for information professionals with responsibility for knowledge and information management activity and will suit both experienced professionals, those new to the area, and LIS students taking relevant courses.

Coding with XML for Efficiencies in Cataloging and Metadata: Practical Applications of XSD, XSLT, and XQuery

Timothy W. Cole, Myung-Ja (MJ) K. Han, and Christine Schwartz | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1653-7

Even experienced catalogers and copy catalogers need guidance when creating metadata for sharing bibliographic records or digital collections on the web. Likewise, coders or new librarians coming from iSchool or software backgrounds need examples of how to use XMLElement or XSLT scripting with library records. That's where this new handbook from the Association for Library Collections & Technical Services (ALCTS) comes in. All librarians working in their code editors will want this resource, with its 58 sample coding examples, at their side. It covers:

- essential background information, with a quick review of XML basics;
- transforming XML metadata in HTML;
- schema languages and workflows for XML validation;
- an introduction to XPath and XSLT;
- cataloging workflows using XSLT; and
- the basics of XQuery, including use cases and XQuery expressions and functions.

Digital Asset Management in Theory and Practice

Mark Hedges

PRINT: 978-1-85604-935-1

This handbook provides information professionals with everything they need to know to effectively manage digital content and information, addressing digital asset management (DAM) from a practitioner’s point of view but also introducing readers to the theoretical background to the subject.

Cataloguing and Decision-making in a Hybrid Environment: The Transition from AACR2 to RDA

Anne Welsh

PRINT: 978-1-85604-955-9

Showing readers how to operate successfully in a world of hybrid catalogs, where records created under different standards coexist, this hands-on guide draws out the flexibility offered by RDA and the scope for cataloger judgment in balancing flexibility with consistency of entry.
Information Systems: Process and Practice
Edited by Christine Urquhart, Faten Hamad, Dina Tbaishat, and Alison Yeoman
PRINT: 978-1-78330-241-3
This collection adopts a holistic interpretation of information architecture to offer libraries and information professionals a variety of methods, tools, and techniques that may be used when designing websites and information systems that support workflows. Featuring an international lineup of contributors, with case studies that cover a wide variety of settings, this book

› discusses research and methods that help libraries and information services use strategic business objectives as a foundation for organizing processes;
› shows how to support information management functions;
› opens a new area of research/investigation on the link between information behavior research and information systems and architecture; and › uses introductory sections and chapter commentary from the editors to draw the discussions together.

Information at Work: Information Management in the Workplace
Katriina Byström, Jannica Heinström, and Ian Ruthven
PRINT: 978-1-78330-275-8
This book includes a set of chapters examining and reviewing the major concepts within workplace information, from overarching themes of information cultures and ecologies, to strategic concerns of information management and governance, and to detailed accounts of questions and current debates.

Facet Analysis
Vanda Broughton
PRINT: 978-1-78330-083-9
This book provides a general overview of facet analysis as a formal methodology for building knowledge organization and search tools and as a general knowledge organization theory. Examples of all the functions of faceted systems (organizing content, building tools, designing interfaces, and empowering search) are discussed.

Metadata for Information Management and Retrieval, Second Edition
David Haynes
PRINT: 978-1-85604-824-8
Haynes has fully revised his benchmark text to bring it up to date with new technology and standards. The new edition, containing new chapters on Metadata Standards and Encoding Schemes, assesses the current theory and practice of metadata and examines key developments in terms of both policy and technology.

The Chief Data Officer’s Playbook
Caroline Carruthers and Peter Jackson
PRINT: 978-1-78330-257-4
“This is a book for practitioners by practitioners. It offers must-read insights into the potential of data to transform . . . There’s something here for anyone who cares about harnessing data to improve outcomes.”—Tim Carmichael, Chief Data Officer and Chief Analytics Officer, British Army
Metadata, Second Edition
Marcia Lei Zeng and Jian Qin | PRINT: 978-1-55570-965-5

Named a 2017 CHOICE Outstanding Academic Title

“The current edition of this seminal resource represents a radical and necessary shift to a richer, more comprehensive analysis of metadata and its uses . . . A core reference work.”—CHOICE

Unmatched as both an LIS text and a handy reference for professionals, this book

› lays out the fundamentals of metadata, including principles of metadata, structures of metadata vocabularies, and metadata descriptions;
› surveys metadata standards and their applications for various communities of metadata practice;
› examines metadata building blocks, from modeling to defining properties, and from designing application profiles to implementing value vocabularies;
› describes important concepts as resource identification, metadata as linked data, consumption of metadata, interoperability, and quality measurement; and › offers an updated glossary to help readers navigate metadata’s complex terms in easy-to-understand definitions.

Metadata for Digital Collections
A HOW-TO-DO-IT-MANUAL FOR LIBRARIANS
Steven J. Miller | PRINT: 978-1-55570-746-0

“An extremely useful book for . . . those with little to no experience in using non-MARC metadata, who either need to do so now or who would simply like to remain current with developments in the field; those who need a ready-reference work for a particular metadata scheme; and students of cataloging and metadata.”—College & Research Libraries

This practical, hands-on volume will make it easy for readers to acquire the metadata knowledge and skills they need, whether they use the book on the job or in a classroom. Miller focuses on the three metadata schemes most commonly used in general digital resource description (Dublin Core, MODS, and VRA) and includes numerous practical examples that clarify common application issues and challenges. He provides practical guidance on applying each of the Dublin Core elements, taking special care to clarify those most commonly misunderstood. The book includes a step-by-step guide on how to design and document a metadata scheme for local institutional needs and for specific digital collection projects.

Practical Ontologies for Information Professionals
David Stuart
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1511-0

“A sound introduction.”
—Library Journal

“Offers insight into the evolution of classification of digital data and knowledge. This book will be useful to archivists, domain experts, LIS students, and library and information professionals. Recommended.”—ARBA

Essential Classification, Second Edition
Vanda Broughton
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1369-7

“This lucid book of classification knowledge in pellucid prose and engaging style can easily be described as the best one as of today.”—Knowledge Organization

“An essential resource.”—Technical Services Quarterly
RDA Essentials

Thomas Brenndorfer | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1328-4

“A most helpful shorthand guide.”—Catholic Library World

This concise guide to cataloging with RDA: Resource Description and Access specifically hones in on the needs of those seeking a simplified path to creating basic RDA records. First describing foundational RDA concepts and vocabulary, Brenndorfer then distills RDA instructions, matching them to cataloging practice in easy-to-follow language. Current with RDA instructions through the April 2015 update to RDA, this guide makes an excellent primer while also serving as a bridge to more complex cataloging. It’s an ideal resource for:

- Small libraries that require standard cataloging but don’t need all the details of structure and content of the full RDA;
- LIS students who need an introduction to cataloging;
- Paraprofessionals seeking a ready reference for copy cataloging; and
- Experienced catalogers needing a quick summary of RDA practice.

Linked Data for Libraries, Archives and Museums: How to Clean, Link and Publish your Metadata

Seth van Hooland and Ruben Verborgh | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1251-5

“Can easily be used as either a linked data textbook for library and information science educators or a linked data handbook for library, archive, and museum technical services.”—Technicalities

In this handbook, metadata experts van Hooland and Verborgh introduce the core concepts of metadata standards and Linked Data and show how they can be applied to existing metadata. Giving readers the tools and understanding to achieve maximum results with limited resources, this book covers such crucial topics as:

- The value of metadata;
- Metadata creation, including architecture, data models, and standards;
- Metadata cleaning;
- Metadata reconciliation;
- Metadata enrichment through Linked Data and named-entity recognition;
- Importing and exporting metadata; and
- Ensuring a sustainable publishing model.

Conducting the Reference Interview, Third Edition
A HOW-TO-DO-IT MANUAL FOR LIBRARIANS
Catherine Sheldrick Ross, Kirsti Nilsen, and Marie L. Radford | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1727-5
This updated manual will teach you how to understand the needs of public, academic, and special library users across any virtual setting—including email, text messaging, and social media—as well as in traditional and face-to-face models of communication. Packed with exercises and examples, this book

› covers the ins and outs of the readers’ advisory interview;
› examines a wide range of contexts, such as children, young adults, parents, seniors, adults from diverse communities, and those with disabilities;
› presents case studies of innovative reference and user encounters;
› offers updated coverage of virtual reference;
› features guidance on how to use awareness of emotion as a factor in reference interactions; and › discusses topics such as respecting/protecting privacy, overcoming assumptions, implicit judgement, the importance of context, and many other lessons learned from challenging reference encounters.

The 4 Rs of Reference: Using the Psychology of Question-Asking for Reference Success
David A. Tyckoson | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1643-8
A sometimes invisible pathway lies between a patron’s initial question and what the patron actually wants to find out. This book gives reference librarians a set of techniques for illuminating that pathway, showing ways to interact with library users productively. Speaking to reference novices as well as to professionals looking to polish their approach, reference pioneer Tyckoson

› discusses the psychology of question asking, examining how psychological factors can inhibit users from asking questions;
› introduces the four Rs of reference—reassuring, responding, restating, and repeating—an effective method for working with users that can help overcome barriers;
› demonstrates how to apply the RUSA Behavioral Guidelines for more successful reference interactions; and › addresses key issues such as in-person and online reference, the impact of environmental factors like desk size and location, the use of open- and closed-ended questioning, and how to deal with problem situations and users.

Reference Sources and Services for Youth, Second Edition
Meghan Harper | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1642-1
The challenge for K–12 library media specialists, teachers, and youth services librarians alike is how and where to direct students so they spend time on productive research rather than shallow online searches. This trusted resource points the way. Loaded with skill-based exercises and case study scenarios, it

› covers developmentally appropriate sources for elementary, middle school, and high school aged youth;
› examines how today’s students look for information and points out ways to capitalize on this behavior;
› addresses information literacy, including an overview of ACRL’s Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education and other key standards;
› delves deeply into important topics like reference interview techniques, ethical considerations, government resources for youth, facility design, marketing, and copyright due diligence; and › expands its discussion of homework centers, offering guidance on how to work effectively with all kinds of students, including those with special needs.
Reference and Information Services: An Introduction, Fourth Edition
Kay Ann Cassell and Uma Hiremath | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1568-4

“Library school students will benefit from reading the book cover-to-cover . . . The book is an irreplaceable source that can be recommended as an essential item for any library’s professional collection.”—Collection Building

Teaching failsafe methods for identifying important materials by matching specific types of questions to the best available sources, regardless of format, this text offers fresh insight on such core issues as:

› ethics, readers’ advisory, information literacy, and other key aspects of reference librarianship;
› selecting and evaluating reference materials, with strategies for keeping up to date;
› assessing and improving reference services;
› guidance on conducting reference interviews with a range of different library users, including children and young adults; and
› a new discussion of reference as programming.

Finding the Answers to Legal Questions, Second Edition
Virginia M. Tucker and Marc Lampson | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1569-1

“Highly recommended for public, academic, and law libraries.” —Booklist (starred review)

An ideal tool for practicing librarians looking to better serve users’ legal needs, as well as for LIS students preparing for careers as librarians, this book provides:

› an overview of fundamental legal information, including the basic structure of the U.S. legal system and primary law;
› how-to instructions for finding primary law in print sources, free websites, and pay-for-view databases;
› information on how to evaluate the trustworthiness of online and print resources;
› tips for conducting a legal reference interview;
› guidance for handling common legal questions, such as lawsuits, family law, landlord-tenant disputes, wills and estate planning, debt, bankruptcy, employment, and criminal law; and › advice on how to build a basic legal reference collection.

Helping Patrons Find Their Roots: A Genealogy Handbook for Librarians
Janice Lindgren Schultz | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1644-5

“This book should be in every public library. It is very useful for librarians in guiding their patrons to genealogy resources.”—Catholic Library World

In this book Schultz, an experienced genealogy librarian, guides librarians through the process, providing:

› an overview of heritage research, with an explanation of the differences between genealogy and family history;
› step-by-step instructions for finding genealogy records;
› a discussion of useful databases such as Ancestry Library Edition and Heritage Quest as well as print sources of information;
› key websites to help patrons continue their search; and › advice on collection development and training.

Transforming Young Adult Services, Second Edition
Edited by Anthony Bernier; Foreword by John M. Budd | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1774-9
How should LIS envision its young adult users? Now showcasing an even more rigorous debate about the theory and practice of YA librarianship than its first edition, this “provocative presentation of diverse viewpoints by leaders in the field” (Catholic Library World) has been updated and expanded to incorporate recent advances in critical youth studies. A comprehensive, evidence-based treatment that offers LIS instructors, students, and practitioners a valuable tool for aligning YA services to more fully reflect our diverse populations of young people, this collection discusses such topics as

- the historical roots for current theories and practice;
- diverse YA identities, including critical theory regarding youth of color;
- competing perspectives on young adults’ rights in libraries;
- envisaging YA librarianship from a teen-centered perspective;
- youth identities and the school library; and
- moving beyond coaching to copilot with young adults.

This broad range of topics and arguments invites and challenges readers to see critical theory as a means to effect true transformations in young adult services.

25 Projects for Art Explorers
Christine M. Kirker | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1739-8
With schools emphasizing STEM activities for children to meet curriculum goals for standardized testing, nurturing children's artistic creativity is often given short shrift. Kirker’s fun resource aims to restore the balance, offering more than two dozen projects that will spark children’s interest in art and encourage creativity, collaboration, and critical thinking. Designed for kids aged 5-10, and flexible enough to use in either storytimes or classroom settings, the projects here

- introduce children to a variety of art techniques, from gouache and watercolor to collage and papermaking, using a curated selection of quality picture books;
- provide detailed directions for guiding children to experiment with these techniques to create their own projects; and
- include materials lists adaptable for any budget, capsule biographies of the picture books’ illustrators, programming tips, and links to additional resources.

Kirker’s inventive projects will help library staff and educators reinforce learning, encourage experimentation, and build an appreciation for art and the creative process.

Muslims in Story: Expanding Multicultural Understanding through Children’s and Young Adult Literature

Gauri Manglik and Sadaf Siddique | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1741-1

Islamophobia disrupts civil society at many levels, from anti-Muslim policies to heightened tensions and the increased bullying of Muslim children. One of the root causes of Islamophobia is ignorance, often fueled by stereotyped and negative portrayals of Muslims in media and popular culture. Muslims in Story is a timely and proactive approach to tackling this issue, by engendering friendships and empathy through quality children’s and young adult literature. Exposing children in their formative years to positive stories about Muslims can go a long way to creating a multicultural understanding by cementing ideas of tolerance, respect, and acceptance. This resource

- recommends books that will act as windows and mirrors for PreK–12 readers by showcasing diverse foods, dress, and traditions;
- spotlights curated titles that feature Muslim kids as heroes, Islamic contributions throughout history, inspiring Muslim leaders, and folktales from Islamic traditions;
- includes helpful information such as an overview of Muslims in America, author interviews that lend insights into the stories, and hands-on programming activities and discussion tools; and
- provides a list of additional resources for gaining a better understanding of Islam.

Career Programming for Today’s Teens: Exploring Nontraditional and Vocational Alternatives

Amy Wyckoff and Marie Harris | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1759-6

Enrollment in vocational programs is on the rise and many high schools are introducing or restarting vocational preparedness components as part of their curricula. Make sure your library includes offerings that will help youth transition into successful adults. An essential resource for frontline public library staff and administrators, this guide presents step-by-step guidance on designing, planning, and implementing career programming for teens, including career readiness workshops and an annual trade school fair. Drawing from their own successful efforts, the authors address

- the importance of career programming for teens in the library, illustrated using research-based evidence;
- advice for building a collection of print materials and digital resources to assist teens as they explore career options;
- ways that library staff can partner with local schools and other youth-serving organizations to help teens plan for their futures;
- how library staff can design and facilitate engaging career programming that teens and preteens want to attend, including detailed instructions for replicating the authors’ Fast Track Trade School Fair; and
- how to measure the outcomes of these programs and use feedback to plan additional programs.
200+ Original and Adapted Story Program Activities

Rob Reid | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1738-1

From master storyteller and storytimes creator Reid comes this delightful assortment of activities ready for use by children’s librarians, elementary-level media specialists, and early childhood instructors. Reid’s bountiful compendium of his “greatest hits” includes original and adapted fingerplays, poems, activities involving movement and music, participation stories, felt stories, imagination exercises, spoonerism stories, and library raps. With ideas that are perfect for mixing and matching according to audience, setting, and program length, this book

› offers activities suitable for a variety of ages, from children as young as preschool age through middle school students;
› begins with “Hello Activities” and ends with “Goodbye Activities”;
› includes categories such as “The Animal World,” “My World,” “More Fun,” and “The Literary World”; and

Create, Innovate, and Serve:
A Radical Approach to Children’s and Youth Programming

Edited by Kathleen Campana and J. Elizabeth Mills; Foreword by Susan Hildreth
PRINT: 978-0-8389-1720-6

Library services are transforming to emphasize interactive, innovative, and participatory programming. It’s a truly radical approach, and tomorrow’s LIS graduates in children’s and youth services need a resource that helps them understand it. Bringing together a wide range of perspectives from both practice and research this text surveys this new landscape. Providing in-depth information, the contributors

› delve into a wide variety of different programs, discussing their crucial elements and how to develop, plan, and deliver them;
› use case studies of innovative practices to address such key issues as diversity, equity, media mentorship, community partnerships, dedicated library spaces, discussion-based programming, and assessment; and › present annotated bibliographies of research, organized by young children (birth to 5), middle childhood (ages 6 to 12), and teens (ages 13 and up).

LGBTQAI+ Books for Children and Teens:
Providing a Window for All

Christina Dorr and Lizabeth Deskins; Foreword by Jamie Campbell Naidoo | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1649-0

“The book’s tone is warm and its advice universally applicable to school and public libraries large and small, rural and urban.”—Booklist

There is a rich and varied body of literature for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer/questioning, asexual/allied, and intersexed young people, which can function as a mirror for LGBTQAI+ individuals and as a window for others. This resource

› discusses the history of LGBTQAI+ terms and reasons to share LGBTQAI+ literature with all children;
› presents annotated entries for a cross-section of the best LGBTQAI+ lit and nonfiction for young children, middle year students, and teens, with discussion questions and tips;
› offers advice on sensitive issues such as starting conversations with young people, outreach to stakeholders, and dealing with objections and censorship head on; and › ideas for programming and marketing.
36 Workshops to Get Kids Writing: From Aliens to Zebras

AnnMarie Hurtado | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1648-3

Creative writing encourages imaginations to take flight, a wonderful form of play that can build kids’ literacy skills. Packed with ready-to-use lesson plans designed for kindergarten- and early elementary-aged children, this book will help public librarians add creative writing activities to more traditional storytime initiatives and school librarians enrich English Language Arts lessons. Hurtado’s resource provides › an entire year’s worth of weekly lesson plans, adaptable as needed, that include instructions, handouts, and everything needed to plan and prepare;

› recommended read-alouds for each lesson plan;
› ideas and activities scaffolded for different ability levels;
› tips for using humor and silliness to grab kids’ attention and keep them engaged;
› information on how creative writing dovetails with Common Core standards, emphasizing skills and critical thinking over rote learning; and › additional quality read-aloud picture books that can be used as inspiration to create new lessons.

Mother Goose on the Loose, Updated!

Betsy Diamant-Cohen | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1646-9

Named an “outstanding resource” in a starred review by Library Journal, Mother Goose on the Loose (MGOL) incorporates books, rhymes, fingerplays, flannel-boards, music, dance, and child-parent interaction into dynamic programs that bring whole families into the library. Now, Diamant-Cohen has revised and updated her bestseller to include additional research, information, and tips. This resource includes › five MGOL programs with complete scripts and instructions, easily adaptable as needed;

› planning sheets for implementing the program;
› guidance on designing new MGOL sessions;
› suggestions for incorporating digital media such as tablets;
› tips for communicating with parents, library administrators, and stakeholders;
› research findings on the learning process for infants and toddlers, including the importance of repetition, ritual, play, reading, movement, and music; and › links to additional online resources such as music, sample participant surveys, and promotional tools.

Mother Goose on the Loose—Here, There, and Everywhere

Betsy Diamant-Cohen | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1647-6

Not only is Mother Goose on the Loose (MGOL) a fun-filled approach that nurtures early literacy and school readiness skills in young children, it’s also extremely flexible. Demonstrating how librarians, educators, and caregivers have adapted MGOL for a variety of settings, this book encourages others to do the same. Among the contexts presented are › special settings such as museums, outdoor venues, Early Head Starts, homes and home daycares, schools, prisons, and laundromats;

› children with special needs, children in hospitals, parents of premature infants, teen moms, and other special audiences; and › multicultural MGOL, including programs in other languages and programs that focus on cultural heritage and religious traditions.

Creating and Managing the Full-Service Homework Center

Cindy Mediavilla | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1618-6

“Every librarian who strives to meet the learning needs of today’s youth needs to read this book. In addition, teachers and trainers would find this contribution to be an essential planning tool to assist in curriculum foundations.”—ARBA

This book shows the way forward with:

› discussion of the philosophy behind a public library homework center and its many benefits, with useful talking points for getting stakeholders on board;
› examples of model programs from across the country;
› guidance on assessing the community’s educational priorities and utilizing outcome-based planning and evaluation methods;
› pragmatic advice on how to collaborate with schools and educators to coordinate goals;
› thorough consideration of such key issues as carving out a space, setting hours, scheduling staff, and selecting and procuring educational resources; and › handy tools like sample surveys, homework helper application forms and contracts, staff and volunteer job descriptions, and focus group questions.

Encourage Reading from the Start: Essays, Articles, and Interviews from the Field

Pat R. Scales | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1650-6

“Provides an effective overview of the importance of engaging and empowering young readers with quality literature, and gives educators and librarians alike a passionate, practical starting point for doing so.”—School Library Journal

For several decades Scales has been a tireless champion for children’s reading in all its richness and diversity. Filled with stimulating ideas for school and public librarians, this collection

› spotlights compelling editorial columns that cover the core values of ALA, including democracy, privacy, and diversity;
› includes interviews with popular authors such as Phyllis Reynolds Naylor, Graham Salisbury, Elana K. Arnold, Angela Cerrito, and many others; and › features essays on reading trends and classroom discussion topics, with annotated bibliographies.

These interesting and engaging pieces will inspire all those who work with young readers.

Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC) | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1730-5

Updated with the 2018 award and honor books, this perennial favorite gathers together the books deemed most distinguished in American children’s literature and illustration since the inception of the renowned prizes. Librarians and teachers everywhere rely on this guidebook for quick reference and collection development and also as a resource for curriculum links and readers’ advisory. With an easy-to-use streamlined look and format, the 2018 guide features

› a new interview with Newbery Medalist Linda Sue Park;
› explanations of criteria used to select the winners;
› details regarding the media used to create the artwork in Caldecott-winning titles; and › updated bibliographic citations and indexes for the award winners.

This resource for locating information about the best in children’s books is valuable for every collection.
National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries

American Association of School Librarians (AASL) | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1579-0

“Eminently user-friendly as well as easy to understand. The newly designed framework allows learners to grasp the real-life applications and lessons of school librarianship with ease.”—VOYA

The new National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries reflect an evolution of AASL learning standards and program guidelines, now referred to as “Standards” and framed within a single text. These standards feature a new streamlined and integrated standards framework, ensuring that standards-related activities are mutually reinforcing for learners, school librarians, and school libraries. Among the innovations:

› Frameworks for six Shared Foundations—Inquire, Include, Collaborate, Curate, Explore, and Engage—that integrate standards for learning with professional standards and program standards;
› an in-depth look at the Competencies and Alignments within each framework while outlining best practices;
› a section dedicated to assessment and evaluation, providing examples for aligning school and district models with AASL Standards; › scenarios demonstrating strategies for successful implementation in authentic situations; and
› a rich Appendix including a glossary of terms, useful verbs, and a list of evidence.

AASL Standards–Based Learning for Primary Grades: 21 Lessons Inspired by Picture Books

Maureen Schlosser and Rebecca Granatini | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1775-6

Drawing on compelling picture books that can be used to directly support the new AASL National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries, this ready-to-go toolkit of lessons, worksheets, anchor charts, assessments, and rubrics is specifically designed for school librarians and other educators. An invaluable timesaver, this resource provides

› 21 lessons that cover the six Shared Foundations, each following a formatted template that’s easy to follow and incorporates the four Domains (Think, Create, Share, Grow);
› a picture book synopsis for each lesson, followed by that lesson’s objective, essential question, materials, and duration;
› worksheets, anchor charts, and exit slips tailored for each picture book;
› “Quick Tips” that offer helpful ideas and suggestions to consider during the lesson; and
› an appendix that includes assessments and rubrics.

With this resource in hand, learners and educators alike will think, create, share, and grow as they work together to meet the new AASL Standards.
AASL Standards Framework for Learners pamphlet

PRINT: 978-0-8389-1654-4

The AASL Standards Framework for Learners pamphlet is the ideal collaborative and advocacy piece to introduce your stakeholders to this student-focused segment at the heart of the National School Library Standards. In addition to the framework for learners, this convenient pamphlet includes a summary of the essential elements in the standards framework structure, and Common Beliefs reflecting current learning environments and professional best practices that form the foundation of the AASL Standards.

This is the perfect piece to share and present at:
› District school board meetings
› PTA/PTO meetings
› Teacher in-service days

AASL Standards mobile app

A companion tool to the National School Library Standards publication, the AASL Standards mobile app is a powerful tool that will help you quickly search, compare, record, and share the elements of the standards frameworks anytime, anywhere. Always have the AASL Standards at hand—during curriculum meetings, teacher collaborations, professional development, or instructional opportunities. Impress your stakeholders and maximize your collaborative opportunities as you showcase the standards that define your profession.

Maximizing School Librarian Leadership: Building Connections for Learning and Advocacy

Judi Moreillon | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1525-7

By embracing a leadership role, school librarians can work collaboratively to positively impact school cultures, curricula, and teaching practices. Offering inspiration, guidance, and strategies to support school librarians as they make and sustain connections and advocate for their central role in future-ready learning, Moreillon

- details how school librarians, in their leadership and instructional partner roles, can make essential connections that build and sustain a culture of learning in their schools;
- addresses AASL’s new National School Library Standards and recently published AASL position statements;
- bridges school librarians’ practice with the work of education thought leaders and educational initiatives, such as Future Ready Librarians and the International Society for Technology in Education standards for Students and Educators; and
- includes a study guide complete with discussion questions, activities, and reflections questions for each chapter to support readers in using this book as a book study selection.

Transforming Summer Programs at Your Library: Outreach and Outcomes in Action

Natalie Cole and Virginia A. Walter | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1628-5

“For well-cited research about summer reading, or readers who are looking to revamp their programs, this is a comprehensive place to begin.”—Booklist

Working groups of librarians, in partnership with the California Library Association and the California State Library, have created and implemented outcomes- and outreach-based summer reading programs that speak directly to diverse and changing communities. Drawing on case studies, the authors

- discuss the principles, strategies, and evaluation framework that California librarians have created to transform their institutions;
- review a statewide campaign, Summer Matters, that is working to provide equitable summer learning opportunities for all children in California; and
- take an in-depth look a public library summer meal project which brings underserved families to the library while providing learning opportunities for children, volunteer opportunities for teens, and resources for adults.

The Stories We Share: A Guide to PreK–12 Books on the Experience of Immigrant Children and Teens in the United States

Ladislava N. Khailova | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1651-3

Research shows first- and second- generation immigrant children can be at risk of experiencing identity crisis, self-depreciation, and low self-esteem due to intergenerational and intercultural conflicts. These young readers need books that show them that their experiences are not unique—and these books also carry the important potential of promoting general understanding of and tolerance toward immigrant groups. The first of its kind, this guide

- identifies both fiction and non-fiction titles published in the U.S. and Canada between 1990 and 2015 that focus on the twentieth or twenty-first century immigrant experience;
- organizes selections by their world region of birth, including Asia, Latin America, Europe, Africa, and the Middle East, with further subdivisions by countries of origin;
- provides historical background on the immigration patterns of each group, with a list of additional resources; and
- offers discussion starters to promote self-reflection, sense of connectedness, and empathy.
Stories, Songs, and Stretches! Creating Playful Storytimes with Yoga and Movement
Katie Scherrer | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1544-8

“Written for the public librarian to be used in presenting preschool storytime, this book would be helpful to any early childhood educator, parent, or guardian who wishes to use yoga as a movement tool to support early learning.” — Reference & User Services Quarterly

“Resources abound in this text, as the author provides 13 basic poses and instructions for how to explain them to young children. Each pose is supported by early learning tie-ins (such as sounds, letter connections, opposites, etc.) and movement extensions (songs, motion directions, and science). Lesson plans complete this resource, which allows interested professionals to explore this new type of storytime with support before creating their own. Programming professionals will find this a worthwhile resource to enhance their current programs.” — Booklist

Young Adult Literature: From Romance to Realism, Third Edition
Michael Cart | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1462-5

In this latest edition Cart gives his authoritative survey a thorough update to make it even more relevant and comprehensive. Surveying the landscape of YA lit both past and present, this book

› sketches the origins of literature targeted at young adults;
› shows how the best of the genre has evolved to deal with subjects every bit as complex as its audience;
› closely examines teen demographics, literacy, audiobooks, the future of print, and other key topics;
› includes updated treatment of best-selling authors like John Green, Suzanne Collins, and Veronica Roth, plus interviews with leaders in the field;
› presents new and expanded coverage of perennially popular genre fiction, including horror, science fiction, and dystopian fiction;
› offers an updated overview of LGBTQ literature for young adults, including Intersex; and › covers such commercial trends as adult purchasers of YA books and the New Adult phenomenon.

Summer Matters: Making All Learning Count
Elizabeth M. McChesney and Chicago Public Library and Bryan W. Wunar and the Museum of Science and Industry | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1561-5

“Clear, detailed . . . Librarians looking for ways to enrich the nonfiction content of summer programming and to partner with another educational institution will find beneficial strategies from this accessible resource.” — School Library Journal

Today's summer programming needs to engage children with hands-on activities, thus keeping their brains active even when school's out. Here, a team of librarians and educators present a guide based on their award-winning, STEAM-inspired approach. This book

› provides evidence-based research on summer slide, and 21st century learning skills;
› offers tips for managing institutional change;
› provides guidance for developing a new vision for summer at the library, with pointers on adding learning tracks to existing programs and addressing design challenges; and › includes templates for a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), mission statement, logic model, and Summer Learning Challenge evaluations.
Supercharged Storytimes: An Early Literacy Planning and Assessment Guide
Kathleen Campana, J. Elizabeth Mills, and Saroj Nadkarni Ghoting | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1380-2
Based on the groundbreaking research of VIEWS2—the first systematic study of storytimes done to date—the authors recommend simple interactive ways to emphasize early literacy techniques and encourage children to use and practice their pre-reading skills while preserving the delight inherent in storytime. This book
› presents ready-to-use planning tools based on early learning benchmarks with a clear focus on developmental stages;
› demonstrates how to foster early literacy development by inserting the VIEWS2 early literacy domains into the five practices from the second edition of Every Child Ready to Read @ your Library®; › interweaves testimonials from storytime practitioners throughout the text to provide real-world insight; and › shows how storytime presenters can connect with parents and caregivers to promote family engagement.

Baby Storytime Magic: Active Early Literacy Through Bounces, Rhymes, Tickles and More

STEP into Storytime: Using StoryTime Effective Practice to Strengthen the Development of Newborns to Five-Year-Olds
Saroj Nadkarni Ghoting and Kathy Fling Klatt | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1222-5
“An invaluable resource and one that should be a part of every professional development collection for youth services staff. It is a refreshing take on library program guides that offers an accessible method of reinvigorating storytimes.”—School Library Journal (starred review)
The Early Literacy Kit: A Handbook and Tip Cards
Betsy Diamant-Cohen and Saroj Nadkarni Ghoting | PRINT: 978-0-8389-0999-7

“The cards are sturdy and can be easily incorporated into a story time session or other early childhood program. Rather than utilizing all the cards, the creators have offered seven easy steps of how to prepare your program and choose the tips to go along with it. This makes it easy for the presenter - instead of having to memorize tips or have a book of notes, he or she has a number of tip cards ready to be utilized during the session without any bulk.”
—The Australian Library Journal

This innovative and practical kit, put together by two well-known specialists in the field of early literacy, contains everything storytime presenters for children from birth to age five and their parents or caregivers need to spread the word about school readiness skills to adult caregivers. The kit includes:

- an accessible handbook with a resource section;
- 105 reusable tip cards with coordinated activities; and
- a concise summary of important early literacy research.

Jean Donham | PRINT: 978-1-55570-887-0

The latest edition of this classic text shows how to take a proactive role in shaping instruction by learning how to develop and implement a library media program and integrate it into the total educational experience. Revised and updated, Donham's third edition covers all aspects of the school system: students, curriculum and instruction, principals, district administration, and the community. It demonstrates how to interact and collaborate in order to integrate the school library media program throughout these environments. It includes

› real-life examples of issues in school librarianship;
› current statistics and research results on early learning, child poverty, and other topics;
› a new chapter on "the virtual school library"; and › expanded coverage of nonfiction and complex texts

Readers will benefit from this complete coverage of the school environment—common staff structures, budget issues, and more.

Managing the Successful School Library: Strategic Planning and Reflective Practice
Lesley S. J. Farmer | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1494-6

“Whether readers have just begun their careers or have years of experience, they will benefit from this thorough dissection of each aspect of managing a school library.” —School Library Journal

Farmer, awarded the 2017 American Association of School Librarians’ (AASL) Distinguished Service Award, looks past the day-to-day operations of a school library to › introduce the concept of school library programs;

› examine professional and legislated standards for school libraries, and discuss the part a manager plays in meeting them;
› link management with leadership, differentiating the two, and show how the school librarian can carry out both roles; and › help readers assess their own skills, knowledge, and dispositions in order to set short-term and long-term goals.
Leading for School Librarians: There Is No Other Option
Hilda K. Weisburg; Foreword by Susan D. Ballard | PRINT: 978-0-8389-1510-3
“Offers valuable first steps, challenges librarians to develop student-friendly spaces, and inspires readers to exercise their leadership abilities by becoming involved with state and national library organizations.”—School Library Journal
Weisburg builds on her decades of experience and mentorship in school libraries to offer a carefully crafted roadmap that guides readers step by step through the process of transforming into a leader. This book
› begins by addressing common fears about taking on a leadership role, and shows how to move past them and gain confidence;
› demonstrates how to build credibility among stakeholders and peers through strategic risk-taking;
› discusses ways to rely on one’s strengths to grow skills and expertise;
› explains how to know when to lead and when to manage, plus the fine art of delegation; and › gives pointers on communicating effectively, becoming visible, behaving ethically, maintaining a healthy life-work balance, and other important career issues.
