

.....

THE COMPLETE
COLLECTIONS
ASSESSMENT MANUAL

A Holistic Approach

.....

MADELINE M. KELLY

ALA
Neal-Schuman
CHICAGO | 2021

alastore.ala.org

MADLINE KELLY is director of collections at Western Washington University in Bellingham, Washington, where she oversees acquisitions, ILL, course reserves, collections assessment, cataloging, circulation, and maps. Kelly has authored a variety of publications on collections assessment and has presented on the topic regionally and nationally. In her previous position at George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia, she developed and implemented a holistic collections assessment program and undertook dozens of ad-hoc assessment projects. Kelly received her BA in English and Spanish from the University of Mary Washington and her MLS from Simmons College.

© 2021 by the American Library Association

Extensive effort has gone into ensuring the reliability of the information in this book; however, the publisher makes no warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein.

ISBN: 978-0-8389-1868-5 (paper)

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Kelly, Madeline M., 1987- author.

Title: The complete collections assessment manual : a holistic approach / Madeline M. Kelly.

Description: Chicago : ALA Neal-Schuman, 2021. | Includes bibliographical references and index. | Summary: "Spanning both concept and practice, Kelly offers a holistic assessment framework suitable to a variety of collections and contexts. This manual is applicable as both a training tool for practicing librarians and a useful course text for library students"— Provided by publisher.

Identifiers: LCCN 2020000807 | ISBN 9780838918685 (paperback)

Subjects: LCSH: Collection management (Libraries)—Evaluation.

Classification: LCC Z687 .K45 2020 | DDC 025.2/1—dc23

LC record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2020000807>

Book design by Alejandra Diaz in the Expo Serif Pro and Adelle typefaces. Cover design by Kim Thornton. Images © Adobe Stock.

♻️ This paper meets the requirements of ANSI/NISO Z39.48-1992 (Permanence of Paper).

Printed in the United States of America

25 24 23 22 21 5 4 3 2 1

Contents

List of Figures ix
Acknowledgments xvii
Introduction: How to Use This Book xix

PART I --- Planning a Collections Assessment Program 1

1. Holistic Collections Assessment 3
 Process Improvements 5
 Assessment Outcomes 5
 Organizational Benefits 6
 Further Reading 7
 References 7

2. Assessment Goals 9
 How to Set Goals 9
 Examples: Goals 10
 Putting Goals, Questions, and Actions Together 13

3. Assessment Stakeholders 15
 How to Identify Stakeholders 15
 Working with Stakeholders 17
 The Engagement Time Line 17
 Examples: Collaboration Time Lines 18
 Further Reading 19

- 4. Selecting Data and Methods 21
 - Choosing Your Framework 21
 - The Universe of Data 23
 - Mapping Your Goals to the Data 24
 - Methods 27
 - Achieving Balance 27
 - Pursuing Inclusion 29
 - Achieving Sustainability 31
 - Assessment Tools 31
 - References 32

- 5. Project Planning 35
 - Anticipating Challenges 35
 - Developing a Formal Project Plan 36
 - Incorporating Assessment into the Workload 39
 - Example of a Project Plan 40
 - Further Reading 40

- 6. Communication Best Practices 41
 - Ongoing Communication 41
 - Communicating Your Results 42
 - Data Visualization 43
 - Sample Communication Plans 47
 - References 48

- 7. Special Considerations 49
 - Sampling 49
 - Structuring Data 51
 - Basic Data Cleaning 52
 - Merging Data 54
 - Pivot Tables 56
 - Data Validity 56
 - Interdisciplinary Assessments 56
 - Outcomes Assessment 57
 - User Privacy 58
 - Further Reading 59
 - References 59

PART II
Metrics and Methods	61
8. Putting the Pieces Together: How to Use Part II	63
COLLECTIONS	67
9. Inventory	69
10. Reputable Bibliographies	75
11. Modified Brief Test	81
12. Uniqueness	87
13. Peer Benchmarking	93
14. E-Resource Environmental Scan	101
USERS	107
15. Patron Demographic Mapping	109
16. User Surveys	117
17. Interviews	129
18. Focus Groups	135
19. Persona Exercises	141
USAGE	145
20. Circulation Analysis	147
21. Physical Item Return on Investment	155
22. Interlibrary Loan Analysis	159
23. E-Resource Use Analysis	165
24. Turnaway Analysis	175
CITATIONS	179
25. Citation Analysis	181
26. Constituent Publishing Outlets	189
27. Bibliometric Analysis	195
28. Altmetric Analysis	201

PART III

Appendixes

209

Appendix A: Assessment Planning Templates 211

Appendix B: Software to Support Assessment 215

Appendix C: Sample Collections Assessment Portfolios 221

Index 231

The templates in appendix A are available as downloadable Word files at alaeditions.org/webextras.

Templates are licensed under CC BY-NC. This license allows reusers to distribute, remix, adapt, and build upon the material in any medium or format for noncommercial purposes only, and only so long as attribution is given to the creator.

Introduction

How to Use This Book

In today's climate of slim budgets and ever-increasing accountability, library personnel are looking for straightforward, implementable solutions to the complex challenge of collections assessment. After all, assessment is an essential piece of building, managing, improving, and communicating about library collections, giving us a concrete foundation upon which to base decisions and build narratives. Unfortunately, assessment can also be a daunting undertaking, too often tackled in a hasty, ad hoc manner as issues arise. If we manage to consult the literature, we can quickly become overwhelmed by the breadth and depth of assessment articles, books, webinars, and standards that are available. When it comes right down to it, few of us have the bandwidth—especially mid-assessment—to perform an extensive literature review, let alone to undertake the time- and thought-intensive process of synthesizing, prioritizing, and applying what we've read. With libraries to run, users to serve, and stakeholders watching, it can feel difficult to justify the up-front effort.

To that end, I have set out to create a one-stop-shop for practical, actionable collections assessment that not only guides readers step-by-step through major assessment methods but also provides concrete guidance on how to contextualize those methods within a broader assessment framework. Although my own experience has been primarily in academic libraries, my audience includes any library personnel who work with collections, be they department or unit heads, assessment specialists, subject specialists, or generalists, working in any type and size of library. The Complete Collections Assessment Manual can be a crash course in getting an assessment program or project running, or a refresher for the seasoned practitioner. Ultimately, my goal is to bridge the divide between the big picture and the nitty-gritty—the why and the how-to—in a nuanced and flexible way, delving into the theory that should underpin every assessment decision, as well as how those decisions might play out in a variety of concrete scenarios. As Blaine Hall so succinctly described his own 1985 assessment manual, “This is a training manual, not merely a procedures manual” (vii). The end result is a choose-your-own-adventure that empowers the reader to develop and enact meaningful assessment projects and programs at any library.

Part I of the manual leads readers through the development of an assessment program or project by way of chapters on holistic collections assessment, goal-setting, stakeholders, selecting data and methods, project planning, communication best practices, and special considerations. Each chapter combines conceptual overviews with practical, hands-on considerations, including checklists and examples. After reading part I, readers can use the components developed over those first seven chapters to build assessment programs that include project plans, stakeholder engagement time lines, and communication plans. (Templates for these are included in appendix A). Part I also lays the foundation for readers to assemble a custom portfolio of tools and methods tailored to their specific assessment needs or to use one of the sample portfolios provided in appendix C as their starting point. Because it's critical that assessment be customized to meet local need, each sample assessment program in this appendix is framed around commonly used assessment goals and provides a variety of options for specific methods, depending on available resources.

Part II of the manual is where the rubber meets the road, providing in-depth guidance for implementing twenty individual assessment techniques, tools, or methods. Each of these chapters provides step-by-step instructions for preparing and analyzing assessment data, as well as recommended visualizations for communicating results. Readers can follow a linear trajectory, reading through each approach, or pick and choose based on need. To facilitate non-linear reading, each assessment method is prefaced with some basic information, including how resource-intensive it is to implement, to what formats it can be applied, what kinds of goals it supports, its strengths, and its shortcomings. Each chapter also provides information on complementary assessment methods and suggestions for further reading. Readers can use this information to pinpoint the most relevant methods for their needs.

As you read this book and embark on—or continue with—your own assessment endeavors, remember to start small, leverage your strengths, and be willing to fail. Let the overall principles and best practices of assessment guide you, but don't forget that libraries, collections, and user communities vary, so adapt the tools, strategies, and methods in this manual to your collection and your constituents' needs. Give yourself time at the outset to plan each project, and time afterwards to evaluate. Build a network of assessment colleagues within and beyond your organization. Ask challenging questions. Be willing to change. Even with a manual in hand, assessment is learned by doing, and each project you undertake will teach you something new. If you're like me, maybe you experience a hint of imposter syndrome: Who am I to analyze complex library data? What do I know about statistics? Do I even know what I'm doing? I hope this book can be your leg up over that first hurdle. Choose your own assessment adventure. The learning process betters us all, so why not start somewhere?

Reference

Hall, Blaine H. 1985. Collections Assessment Manual for College and University Libraries. Phoenix, AZ: Oryx Press.

PART I

Planning a Collections Assessment Program

1

Holistic Collections Assessment

Collections assessment is a huge undertaking, and half the battle is simply figuring out where to start. There are a number of approaches to assessing a library collection, from focused ad hoc projects to sweeping comprehensive assessment programs. Assessment can slice a collection along subject lines, by format, or based on patron demographics. It can be informal or rigidly codified. Odds are, you're already conducting assessments in some or all of these categories. One of my hopes for this book is to help corral and streamline your existing efforts in a more focused, goal-oriented way. To that end, I present a holistic approach to collections assessment that can be overlaid onto any of these other strategies. Flexible in nearly every way, holistic assessment takes a big-picture approach and can be applied to any aspect of libraries, from collections to services to operations. In the context of collections, holistic assessment entails mixing and matching a variety of metrics to build a broad yet nuanced understanding of a collection's composition and impact. This means you can weave in the routine or ad hoc assessment you already do, add strategic components to your assessment portfolio, and answer the big questions you need answered. Whether you complete a project once a year or only once, the holistic approach provides the structure to accommodate any assessment need. Consider it your blank canvas or empty framework. Fill it with pieces that make sense for you. The next six chapters will help you wrangle your existing efforts and harness them holistically to suit your specific assessment goals.

Over the last few decades, as the need to demonstrate and articulate library value has increased, the profession has seen a proliferation of assessment case studies. These studies have largely focused on a single format (e.g., electronic journals) or assessment method (e.g., circulation analysis). These case studies are an essential source of how-to knowledge, providing proof-of-concept for assessment techniques we can all use. However, more recently, there has been an increasing understanding of how limited these focused case studies can be as a body of literature. As straightforward as they are to digest and recreate, these studies are necessarily one-dimensional and do not capture the full complexity of the assessment landscape. In response to this need for more contextualized decision-making, we have seen a growing literature in favor of a broader approach: holistic collections assessment.

Frameworks for holistic collections assessment have emerged noticeably since the early 2000s. Scott Nicholson's 2004 article "A Conceptual Framework for the Holistic Measurement and Cumulative Evaluation of Library Services" serves as one of the early examples. Nicholson explains the concept of the library as a system in which each piece affects all the others and emphasizes the corresponding need to assess all the components of that system in order to make sound decisions. Although your assessment projects are likely to focus primarily on collections, it can still be helpful to think of collections as a system where users, formats, and subjects are interlinked in complex ways. The holistic approach outlined in the next six chapters will help you do this.

In "The Library of Babel: Making Sense of Collection Management in a Postmodern World" (2005), Sonia Bodi and Katie Maier-O'Shea identified three components of a holistic and flexible assessment model: breaking a collection into chunks for more meaningful assessment, combining multiple assessment tools appropriate to each format or discipline, and collaborating with constituents to map collections to user outcomes. All three of these components, which operationalize the holistic systems thinking from Nicholson's 2004 article, will be present throughout the remainder of this manual. You will be encouraged to scope your assessment projects thoughtfully, engage with stakeholders, and, in part II, assemble a portfolio of methods and metrics from twenty possible options.

Jacqueline Borin and Hua Yi's 2008 article "Indicators for Collection Evaluation: A New Dimensional Framework" pushed the concept of holistic assessment even further by identifying six specific dimensions of the collection that should be included for comprehensive assessment: general capacity, subject standards, scholarly publishing, environmental factors, users, and usage (these dimensions are outlined in greater detail in chapter 4). Borin and Yi's framework for collections assessment is only one of several you can choose from to ensure that your assessment is as holistic and balanced as it should be. More recently, Michael Luther's article "Total Library Assessment" (2016) explicitly expanded holistic assessment beyond collections to the library as a whole. As you work with colleagues throughout your organization, watch for potential "total library" synergies that can strengthen decisions and streamline operations.

These four articles are only a small sample of the literature, but they demonstrate the evolution and ongoing refinement of the theory underlying holistic library assessment, as well as some of the ways assessment theory will underpin what you learn in this book.

In addition to these theoretical explorations of the holistic model, there have also been a handful of case studies demonstrating practical approaches to holistic collections assessment. A few examples include Michelle Wilde and Allison Level's "How to Drink from a Fire Hose without Drowning: Collections Assessment in a Numbers-Driven Environment" (2011), Cheri Duncan and Genya O'Gara's "Building Holistic and Agile Collection Development and Assessment" (2015), and the author's own 2014 article, "Applying the Tiers of Assessment: A Holistic and Systematic Approach to Assessing Library Collections." In all three examples, the authors describe specific applications of the holistic collections assessment approach. Reviewing them will give you a sense of what others' assessment strategies look like.

Within this growing literature, librarians have identified and articulated the benefits of the holistic approach to collections assessment. One of the primary benefits is that it allows for stronger, better-informed decisions than those based on a single metric or indicator. This bolstering effect manifests throughout the assessment process and beyond, including during data collection and analysis, at the point of identifying action items, and in high-level strategic conversations. Put another way, holistic collections assessment can positively impact process, outcome, and organization.

PROCESS IMPROVEMENTS

At the most basic level, holistic assessment helps mitigate many of the challenges associated with “messy” library data. By combining metrics from across the collection, you reduce the pressure on each specific metric to be perfect and create some breathing room for the odd data glitch, blind spot, or quirk. In an environment where staff are already stretched thin, building an assessment framework with reasonable and achievable expectations for data cleanliness can make or break an assessment project. For example, in a cancellation environment where cost per use is the only criterion, how do you handle resources for which use data is unavailable? Libraries must either accept that their decisions will be made blindly or commit a vast expenditure of staff time to tracking down use data for the long tail of non-standard or non-circulating subscriptions (see chapter 23 for more information on use statistics). If, on the other hand, cost per use becomes only one of several metrics— which could also include community relevance, uniqueness, annual cost increases, usability, accessibility, and more—then there’s less need to collect every scrap of difficult-to-find use data. Instead, resources without use data can be judged by other metrics. The result is a more sustainable assessment practice and more reasonable data-preparation processes.

Another process benefit of holistic assessment is that it allows for a more flexible approach to collections assessment overall. Because it entails drawing input from a variety of sources, holistic assessment encourages the establishment of sustainable and strategic data collection practices. Ad hoc processes get a closer look and can often be fine-tuned, improved, and routinized. Although it might take time to build a holistic framework, once it reaches a critical mass, libraries can pivot quickly to meet internal or external data needs. As staffing changes, specific projects can be expanded or contracted based on the available skills and hours. As stakeholders’ priorities change, so too can the focus of assessment. Faced with a highly specialized subject or format, staff can tweak the portfolio of metrics to highlight what’s special, address what’s challenging, and meet goals in a more targeted way. Holistic assessment encourages us to see the field of possibilities and draw from it to meet the need. Thus, we shift our data-gathering and analysis processes from passive or reactive to strategic, proactive, and forward-thinking.

ASSESSMENT OUTCOMES

Questions of process aside, holistic collections assessment also provides a more complete picture upon which to base decisions than a single metric alone can provide. Library collections are diverse and dynamic. Our users are diverse and dynamic. No single metric can adequately reflect a collection’s value within our complex and evolving landscape and no assessment method or tool is so airtight that it could provide the sole basis for anything but the simplest assessment-related projects. The literature is replete with examples of the fundamental weaknesses of our most cherished metrics. Bibliographies are arbitrary, hard to find and labor-intensive to check. User surveys depend on the self-selection of participants and, depending on response rates, may not be useful for drawing broad conclusions. Interlibrary loan (ILL) analysis assumes that past use correlates to future use; use analysis assumes that each download (or circulation) is as meaningful as the last; and bibliometrics like Impact Factor take for granted the notion that “good” work will be cited while “bad” work won’t. (These shortcomings are addressed further in part II, included alongside each method’s strengths and other features.)

Across the board, assessment methods and tools are flawed, leading us toward a limited understanding of our collections. Rather than accepting this limitation, libraries can build a multitude of perspectives into assessment, thus reducing blind spots and strengthening decision-making. Mixing and matching methods helps us triangulate conclusions we can feel more confident about, situating what we’re seeing within a broader and more balanced context. For example, consider the combined results of (1) checking a well-known bibliography; (2) analyzing ILL requests; (3) conducting a user survey; and (4) analyzing the citations in faculty publications. Perhaps your library owns 10 percent of the titles in the bibliography, which might at first glance suggest a need to purchase more of the core literature for the field. Perhaps there are even a fair number of ILL requests within the subject area, corroborating the need to backfill the collection. But imagine the user survey is completed by a significant portion of the target users and indicates high satisfaction with the collection as-is. Not only that, but patrons specifically praise the usefulness and convenience of ILL to meet their tangential needs. Given that input, perhaps in reality your user community is small enough that a minimal collection is satisfactory. Maybe it would be sufficient to purchase items that appear in both the ILL analysis and the bibliography. Consider the last piece: the citation data. Perhaps your users demonstrate a strong preference for journals, which were not included on the bibliography, thus undermining arguments to further build the monograph collection. Perhaps your users seem to work mainly with gray literature found outside the library altogether. Whatever the specifics, each metric informs the others, shedding light on what might be hidden or misrepresented in the data.

From a political standpoint, approaching assessment and decision-making holistically makes it easier to articulate decisions convincingly and transparently. Many stakeholders will feel uncomfortable with strictly quantitative data and will want to know that decisions have been made with other factors in mind. Other stakeholders will require hard numbers to back up any qualitative elements. With a balanced framework in place, it's much easier to demonstrate the logic and strategy of each decision, especially if you can work with stakeholders to develop that framework in the first place. Ultimately, decisions based on a variety of data constitute a much stronger outcome for the assessment process because they are more robust and justifiable than those based in limited or incomplete data.

Finally, from the perspective of diversity, equity, and inclusion, holistic collections assessment provides the necessary flexibility to challenge entrenched biases and power structures. Many traditional assessment methods and metrics (including use statistics, bibliographies, and bibliometrics) favor a predominantly white, Western canon, disadvantaging, or even excluding, other perspectives. By introducing alternative metrics and methods, we create space in our assessment practices for voices that have previously struggled to be heard. How this works in practice is introduced in chapter 4 and discussed throughout part II. For now, it's worth noting that its greater capacity for social justice is one of holistic collections assessment's most powerful potential outcomes.

ORGANIZATIONAL BENEFITS

Outside of a particular assessment process or project, the holistic approach has the potential for organizational improvements as well. As discussed earlier in this chapter, the approach encourages the gradual examination, refinement, and normalization of existing assessment practices, as well as the identification and development of strategic new practices. By conducting regular holistic assessment projects, libraries accumulate a broad, data-informed understanding of the collection as well as an extensive warehouse of baseline data. Trends become easier to see, and opportunities for change start to suggest themselves. Ongoing assessment projects can be sculpted in response to this evolution. As the pool of available data grows, the practices for collecting and maintaining it improve. Such routine assessment also encourages libraries to engage with their constituent communities regularly. Users and administrators, in turn, become accustomed to (and active partners in) this ongoing collections assessment, rather than experiencing the antagonistic relationship often generated by the too-common, reactionary cancellation or weeding project.

The long-term result is an assessment framework that accommodates, and even fosters, more nimble and socially just decision-making in a collegial environment. Libraries become better poised to answer sudden questions or respond to sudden issues without sacrificing the needs of users or undermining strategic goals. They can simply draw on their trove of available data and portfolio of tried-and-true assessment methods and face the issue head-on. It also paves the way for more strategic decision-making. Because it is high-level, holistic assessment encourages thinking across disciplines, formats, and locations. It encourages comparisons between different pockets of the collections, and among various stakeholder groups. With this wealth of context and foundational data, strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats become easier to see. When a decision comes along, it's easier to act with confidence, because the necessary foundation has already been established.

The outcomes and organizational impacts of holistic assessment speak to one last benefit: the holistic approach encourages a culture of assessment. The phrase “culture of assessment” is often added to mission statements and strategic plans, but culture is tricky, and it often proves harder to build a culture of assessment than people expect. A holistic framework won't get you there instantly, but it can over time. When you consider a variety of metrics, you inspire regular conversations about what is important to measure, which help you to focus your priorities. You start asking questions. Others start asking questions. Conversations with stakeholders about specific assessment projects draw in colleagues, boost engagement, and normalize the holistic way of thinking. In fact, stakeholder engagement over the full span of an assessment project—or across multiple projects—is so central to the success of assessment as a whole that it will come up again and again throughout this book, in chapters on stakeholder engagement, project planning, and communication best practices. As you explore the data and collaborate with colleagues, visible and invisible support structures will emerge, including your warehouse of available data and the oft-elusive culture of assessment. In the end, this culture is critical to the full success of holistic assessment. Holistic assessment can help foster a culture of assessment, but only when that culture has taken root can assessment truly thrive.

Further Reading

- Intner, Sheila S., 2003. “Making Your Collections Work for You: Collection Evaluation Myths and Realities.” Library Collections, Acquisitions, and Technical Services 27 (3): 339–50.
- Micaela, Greg. 2014. “A Culture of Assessment: Five Mindsets.” College and Research Libraries News 75 (6): 311–12.

References

- Bodi, Sonia, and Katie Maier-O'Shea. 2005. “The Library of Babel: Making Sense of Collection Management in a Postmodern World.” Journal of Academic Librarianship 31 (2): 143–50.
- Borin, Jacqueline, and Hua Yi. 2008. “Indicators for Collection Evaluation: A New Dimensional Framework.” Collection Building 27 (4): 136–43.
- Duncan, Cheri Jeanette, and Genya Morgan O'Gara. 2015. “Building Holistic and Agile Collection Development and Assessment.” Performance Measurement and Metrics 16 (1): 62–85.
- Kelly, Madeline. 2014. “Applying the Tiers of Assessment: A Holistic and Systematic Approach to Assessing Library Collections.” Journal of Academic Librarianship 40 (6): 585–91.
- Luther, Michael. 2016. “Total Library Assessment.” Journal of Library Administration 56 (2): 158–70.
- Nicholson, Scott. 2004. “A Conceptual Framework for the Holistic Measurement and Cumulative Evaluation of Library Services.” Journal of Documentation 60 (2): 164–82.
- Wilde, Michelle, and Allison Level. 2011. “How to Drink from a Fire Hose without Drowning: Collections Assessment in a Numbers-Driven Environment.” Collection Management 3 (4): 217–36.

A

- ability status, 110, 111
- academic libraries
 - inclusive collections of, 30
 - outcomes assessment by, 56, 57–58
 - peer benchmarking, 94
 - unused items in, 151
- Academic Library Impact on Student Learning and Success* (Brown & Malenfant), 58
- “accountabilibuddy,” 40
- ACRL
 - See Association of College and Research Libraries
- actionable insights, 118
- actions
 - assessment goals and, 10, 11, 12, 13
 - Assessment Planning Template for, 211
 - for collections management, 13
 - mappings goals to data, 25–26
 - putting goals, questions, actions together, 13–14
- address, 110, 111
- adjusting digital footprint goal, 25
- adjusting financial footprint goal, 10
- adjusting physical footprint goal
 - as category of goals, 10
 - mapping goals to data, 25
 - overview of, 12
- administrators, 6
- age, 110, 111
- ALA (American Library Association), 57, 77
- align with user needs goal, 26
- Alma Analytics
 - for patron demographic mapping, 111
 - for physical item ROI calculation, 156–157
 - for reports on physical data, 71
- altmetric analysis
 - assessment goals relevant to, 201–202
 - complementary methods, 205–206
 - data analysis/use, 204–205
 - data preparation for, 202–204
 - data visualizations for, 205, 206–207
 - key to, 201
 - software for, 205
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 202
- Altmetric Attention Score
 - box and whisker plot showing, 207
 - data analysis, 204, 205
 - hybrid graph showing, 206
- Altmetric Explorer
 - data analysis/use, 204–205
 - function of/features of, 216
 - harvesting altmetrics from, 202–204
- American Library Association (ALA), 57, 77
- “Analysis of an Inductive Method of Evaluating the Book Collection of a Public Library” (Goldhor), 77
- anomalies, 90
- anonymity
 - anonymized unique identifier, 58–59
 - of user survey, 121
- Apache OpenOffice
 - data cleaning, 52–53
 - function of/features of, 216
 - pivot tables in, 56
- appendixes
 - Assessment Planning Templates, 211–213
 - collections assessment portfolios, sample, 221–230
 - software to support assessment, 215–220
- “Applying the Tiers of Assessment: A Holistic and Systematic Approach to Assessing Library Collections” (Kelly), 4
- approval, 17
 - See also permissions
- Arizona State University Libraries, 30

ARL (Association of Research Libraries) Statistics, 94

Article Influence Score

- calculation of, 197
- with Eigenfactor platform, 196
- harvesting data from JCR, 198

articles, 169, 201–207

assessment

- holistic collections assessment, 3–7
- incorporation of in project plan, 39–40
- interdisciplinary assessments, 56–57
- outcomes, 5–6
- outcomes assessment, 57–58
- overview of book's coverage of, xix–xx
- sampling, 49–51
- software to support, 215–220
- stakeholders, 15–19
- techniques, overview of, xx
- See also* collections assessment; collections assessment project

assessment goals

- See* goals, assessment assessment methods

- See* methods

Assessment Planning Templates, 211–213

assessment report

- communication of results, 42–43
- template for developing basic assessment report, 213

assessment staff, 16

assessment stakeholders

- collaboration time lines, examples of, 18–19
- engagement time lines for working with, 17–18
- identification of, 15–16
- working with, 17

Association of College and Research Libraries (ACRL)

- ACRL Metrics, 94
- bibliographies of, 76
- Choice's Outstanding Academic Titles (OAT), 76, 78
- Choice's Resources for College Libraries (RCL), 76
- inventory method for survey, 70

Association of Research Libraries (ARL) Statistics, 94

Atlas.ti

- focus groups data in, 139
- function of/features of, 216
- for interview data, 133, 134
- for user survey data analysis, 123, 124
- for user surveys, 125

average use per year per item, 150

B

balance

- framework choice and, 22
- inclusivity of assessment, 29

bar graph

- for circulation analysis, 153
- for citation analysis, 186
- for collection uniqueness, 90
- for cost, cost per use, circulation, 158
- for distribution of titles by subclass, 73
- for e-resource environmental scan, 105
- for ILL data, 163
- for patron demographic mapping, 115
- for peer benchmarking data, 99, 100
- for reputable bibliographies method, 79
- use of, 44
- for user survey, 126
- of users' publications, 194

Barton, Gail Perkins, 161

BBAS

See Bowker Book Analysis System

behaviors, 143

benchmarking

- with altmetric analysis, 205
- comparison with WCE, 78
- e-resources, 172
- See also* peer benchmarking benefits, 5–7

See also strengths/shortcomings

Bergstrom, Ted, 167

best practices

- for communication, 41–48
- for interview questions, 130–131 bias

- in assessment project, 29
- in interview questions, 130, 131

bibliographies

- for focus on diversity of collection, 30
- in holistic assessment, 6
- for interdisciplinary assessment, 57
- modified brief test method with, 85
- reputable bibliographies method, 75–80
- weakness of, 5

bibliometric analysis

- assessment goals relevant to, 195
- complementary methods, 200
- data analysis/use, 198–199
- data preparation for, 196–198
- data visualizations for, 200
- key to, 195
- software for, 200
- strengths/shortcomings of, 196

bibliometrics

- altmetric analysis and, 205
- tools for, 215

Black, Steve, 185

blank values, 53

- blogs, 42
 - Bodia, Sonia, 4
 - Booklist* Editors' Choice or Notable Books, 77
 - Borin, Jacqueline
 - framework of, 22, 23
 - "Indicators for Collection Evaluation: A New Dimensional Framework," 4
 - Borin and Yi framework
 - choice of, 64
 - collections data organization by, 24
 - description of, 22
 - diagram of, 23
 - mapping collections data to, 28
 - sample collections assessment portfolios, 221–230
 - selection of, 63
 - borrowing requests, 156–162
 - Bourg, Chris, 30
 - Bowker Book Analysis System (BBAS)
 - function of/features of, 216
 - interdisciplinary assessment with, 57
 - list-checking with, 78
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 80
 - as tool for diversity of collection, 30
 - box and whisker plot, 207
 - Brown, Karen, 58
 - budget
 - adjusting financial footprint goal, 12–13
 - resource intensity in framework key, 64
 - See also* finances; funding
 - "Building Holistic and Agile Collection Development and Assessment" (Duncan & O'Gara), 4
- C
- C&RL News*, 30
 - Canva, 216
 - capacity, 22
 - census data, 95
 - challenges, 35–36
 - charts
 - data visualization, guidance on, 43–44
 - pie chart showing multiple dimensions, 46
 - showing relative size, 45
 - tree map showing multiple dimensions, 46
 - tree map showing relative size, 45
 - See also* data visualizations
 - Chase, Suzanne, 23
 - checkpoints, 39–40
 - chemistry e-resources, 103, 104
 - Chen, Hsuanwei Michelle, 43
 - circulation analysis
 - assessment goals relevant to, 147–148
 - of bibliography titles, 80
 - citation analysis and, 186
 - complementary methods, 153–154
 - data analysis/use, 149–153
 - data preparation for, 148–149
 - data visualizations for, 153
 - with e-resource use analysis, 174
 - with focus groups, 139
 - formats, applicable, 148
 - with ILL analysis, 163
 - with interview data, 134
 - inventory method and, 74
 - key to, 147
 - with modified brief test method, 85
 - patron demographic mapping and, 114
 - for peer benchmarking, 100
 - with persona exercises, 144
 - physical item ROI and, 156
 - software for, 153
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 148
 - with uniqueness method, 91
 - with user surveys, 125
 - circulation numbers, 156
 - Ciszek, Matthew P., 29
 - citation analysis
 - altmetric analysis and, 205
 - assessment goals relevant to, 181–182
 - with bibliometric analysis, 200
 - complementary methods to, 186
 - constituent publishing outlets and, 192
 - data analysis/use, 185–186
 - data preparation for, 182–185
 - data visualizations for, 186, 187
 - formats, applicable, 182
 - key to, 181
 - software for, 186
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 182
 - studies, 188
 - with user surveys, 125
 - citation management tool, 183–184
 - citations
 - bibliometric analysis, 195–200
 - constituent publishing outlets, 189–194
 - data clean-up, 184–185
 - in Goldilocks framework, 22
 - parsing/coding data, 183–184
 - sampling for citation analysis, 183
 - citations methods
 - altmetric analysis, 201–207
 - bibliometric analysis, 195–200
 - citation analysis, 181–188
 - constituent publishing outlets, 189–194
 - overview of sections covering, 179–180

- CiteScore
 - bibliometric analysis data, 196
 - calculation of, 197
 - harvesting data from Scopus, 198
- Clarivate Analytics
 - bibliometrics, calculation of, 197
 - for citations data, 184
 - InCites, 186, 216
 - Journal Citation Reports platform, 196
 - Web of Science, 190
- coding
 - of citations data, 183–184
 - of user survey data, 123
- collaboration
 - for interviewer training, 131
 - for project plan development, 36
 - stakeholder engagement time line, 18–19
 - on user survey, 119
- collection depth, 89–90
- collection development
 - list of, 215
 - tools for, 161
- collection indicators
 - in assessment frameworks, 22–23
 - balance of data and, 27–29
 - collections data organization by, 24
 - methods for, 64
- collections
 - align collections with user needs goal, 230
 - e-resource use analysis, 165–174
 - in Goldilocks framework, 22
 - ILL analysis, 159–162
 - inventory method, 69–74
 - maintain collections thoughtfully and deliberately goal, 228–229
 - methods for, 67–68
 - modified brief test method, 81–85
 - reputable bibliographies method, 75–80
 - trends in, identification of, 98
 - uniqueness method, 87–91
- collections assessment
 - collections assessment portfolios, 221–230
 - holistic, 3–7
 - parsing, 111–112
 - patron demographic mapping, 109–115
- Collections Assessment Manual for College and University Libraries* (Hall), 50
- collections assessment project
 - assessment tools, criteria for, 31–32
 - balance of data, 27–29
 - communication best practices for, 41–48
 - core components of, 21
 - data inventory for, 23–24
 - framework, choice of, 21–23
 - inclusion, pursuit of, 29–31
 - mapping goals to data, 24–27
 - methods for, 27
 - project plan for, 35–40
 - sustainability of, 31
- collections management, 13
- collections proportions, 113
- color palette, 44
- Colorado Alliance of Research Libraries, 217
- column index number, 55
- combine cells, 53
- commitments, 26, 226
- communication
 - data visualization for, 43–46
 - importance of, 41
 - ongoing, 41–42
 - plan, worksheet for development of, 212
 - of results of assessment project, 42–43
 - sample communication plans, 47–48
 - staff, as assessment stakeholders, 16
 - stakeholder engagement and, 18
- community groups
 - for focus group facilitator, 138
 - for interviewee recruitment, 132
- complementary methods
 - to altmetric analysis, 205–206
 - to bibliometric analysis, 200
 - to circulation analysis, 153–154
 - to citation analysis, 186
 - to constituent publishing outlets, 192–194
 - to e-resource environmental scan, 106
 - to e-resource use analysis, 174
 - to focus groups, 139
 - to interlibrary loan analysis, 162
 - to interviews, 134
 - to modified brief test method, 84–85
 - to patron demographic mapping, 114
 - to peer benchmarking, 99–100
 - to persona exercises, 143–144
 - to physical item return on investment, 158
 - to reputable bibliographies method, 80
 - to turnaway analysis, 177
 - to uniqueness method, 91
 - to user surveys, 125
- The Complete Assessment Manual* (Kelly), xix–xx
- “A Conceptual Framework for the Holistic Measurement and Cumulative Evaluation of Library Services” (Nicholson), 4
- conditional formatting, 161
- confidence level, 49–50
- consent, 58–59
- constituent publishing outlets

assessment goals relevant to, 189
 citation analysis and, 186
 complementary methods, 192–194
 data analysis/use, 191–192
 data preparation for, 190–191
 data visualizations for, 192
 formats, applicable, 190
 key to, 189
 software for, 192
 strengths/shortcomings of, 190 context, for user survey, 119 core e-resources, 104 core titles altmetric analysis for identification of, 202 citation analysis for, 185 constituent publishing outlets data analysis, 192 corroborating questions, 119
 cost data
 in e-resource use analysis, 170–171
 for physical item ROI calculation, 156
 cost per use (CPU)
 calculation of, 149, 155
 data visualizations of, 173 for e-resources, 171 high-/low-CPU items, 172
 HPCU, 176
 ILL CPU, calculation of, 161 physical item ROI calculation, 156–157
 COUNTER 4
 COUNTER 4 reports/COUNTER 5 equivalents, 173
 for database statistics, 169
 e-book reports in, 167 features of, 166
 turnaway reports, 176
 COUNTER 5
 complications with, 167
 COUNTER 4 reports/COUNTER 5 equivalents, 173
 e-book use data in, 170
 features of, 166
 turnaway reports, 176
 Counting Online Usage of Networked Electronic Resources
 (COUNTER)
 COUNTER 4 reports/COUNTER 5 equivalents, 173
 data preparation for e-resource use analysis, 166, 167–168
 for database statistics, 169
 for e-journal resource use analysis, 168–169 inconsistencies in data, 172
 turnaway reports, 176
 coverage power test
 See modified brief test method
 “Covering the Population and Selecting Who to Survey” (Dillman, Smyth, & Melani), 122

CPU
 See cost per use
Creating a Social Justice Mindset: Diversity, Inclusion, and Social Justice in the Collections Directorate of the MIT Libraries (Baillon et al.), 30 CSV format
 for altmetric analysis, 204 exporting data in, 52 use data stored in, 168 culture of assessment, 7 currency, 185–186 custom portfolio of assessment methods, 63 cyclical time line, 18, 19

D

data altmetrics, harvesting, 202–204 balance of, 27–29
 data cleaning, 52–53
 framework, choice of, 21–23
 inclusivity of, 29
 inventory of, 23–24
 mapping goals to, 24–27 merging, 53–56 merging tools, 215 methods vs., 27
 for outcomes assessment, 57–58
 process improvements with holistic assessment, 5
 sampling, 49–51
 selection of, 21
 structuring, 51–52
 data analysis
 altmetric analysis, 204–205
 bibliometric analysis, 198–199
 for circulation analysis, 149–153
 citation analysis, 185–186
 constituent publishing outlets, 191–192
 e-resource environmental scan, 104–105
 e-resource use analysis, 171–174
 focus groups, 139
 for interlibrary loan analysis, 161–162
 interviews, 132–133
 in inventory method, 73–74
 modified brief test method, 83–84
 patron demographic mapping, 112–114
 peer benchmarking, 97–99
 persona exercises, 143
 for physical item return on investment, 156–157 with pivot tables, 56 in project plan time line, 38 reputable bibliographies method, 78–79
 structuring data for, 52

- data analysis (continued)
 - 10/90 Rule for, 32
 - turnaway analysis, 176–177
 - uniqueness method, 89–90
 - user survey questions and, 120
 - user surveys, 123–125
- data cleaning
 - basic, 52–53
 - for circulation analysis, 148–149
 - for citation analysis, 184–185
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 103–104
 - for ILL analysis, 160
 - tools, 215
 - for user survey data analysis, 123
- data inventory, 212
- data points
 - as core component of collections assessment project, 21
 - mapping goals to data, 24–27
 - sustainability of assessment project and, 31
- data preparation
 - for altmetric analysis, 202–204
 - for bibliometric analysis, 196–198
 - for circulation analysis, 148–149
 - for citation analysis, 182–185
 - for constituent publishing outlets, 190–191
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 102–104
 - for e-resource use analysis, 166–171
 - for focus groups, 136–138
 - for interlibrary loan analysis, 160
 - for interviews, 130–132
 - for inventory method, 70–73
 - for modified brief test method, 82–83
 - for patron demographic mapping, 110–112
 - for peer benchmarking, 94–97
 - for persona exercises, 142–143
 - for physical item return on investment, 156
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 76–78
 - for turnaway analysis, 176
 - for uniqueness method, 88–89
 - for user surveys, 118–122
- data stewards, 16
- data validity, 56
- data visualizations
 - for altmetric analysis, 205, 206–207
 - for bibliometric analysis, 200
 - for circulation analysis, 153
 - for citation analysis, 186, 187
 - for constituent publishing outlets, 192
 - e-resource environmental scan, 105
 - for e-resource use analysis, 173, 174
 - for focus groups, 139
 - guidance on, 43–44
 - for interlibrary loan analysis, 162
 - for interviews, 133–134
 - for inventory data, 73–74
 - literature on, 43
 - for modified brief test method, 84
 - OCLC WCE for peer benchmarking, 96
 - for patron demographic mapping, 114, 115
 - for peer benchmarking, 99, 100
 - for persona exercises, 143, 144
 - for physical item return on investment, 157, 158
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 79
 - with SCS GreenGlass, 89, 95
 - tools for, 215
 - for uniqueness method, 90–91
 - for user surveys, 125, 126
- databases
 - cost data for, 170
 - data preparation for inventory method, 72
 - e-resource environmental scan, 102–106
 - e-resource list for patron demographic mapping, 112
 - e-resource use analysis, 166, 169
 - use data, analysis of, 172–174
- date suffix, 52
- Davis, Philip M., 167
- DDC (Dewey Decimal Classification), 44, 57
- decision-making
 - assessment goals and, 10
 - holistic collections assessment and, 4, 6–7
 - informing day-to-day decisions goal, 13
 - in project plan, 37
- Dedoose
 - focus groups data in, 139
 - function of/features of, 216
 - for interview data, 133, 134
 - for user survey data analysis, 123, 124
 - for user surveys, 125
- deliverables, 38
- demographic data, 124
- demographic mapping
 - See* patron demographic mapping
- demographic questions, 120
- demonstrating financial impact goal
 - mapping to data, 25
 - sample collections assessment portfolio, 221–222
- demonstrating human impact goal
 - mapping goals to data, 25
 - sample collections assessment portfolio, 222
- demonstrating impact goal
 - as category of goals, 10
 - examples of, 10–11
 - mapping goals to data, 25

- DePope, Leigh Ann, 32
 Dewey Decimal Classification (DDC), 44, 57 digital collections, 166 See also e-resources digital footprint goal, 225 Dillman, Don A., 122 discussion/conclusions, 17–18 diversity
 holistic collections assessment and, 6 inclusivity of assessment project, 29–31 documentation of assessment project, 40 of data cleaning, 53
 in project plan, 38
 Doody's Core Titles in the Health Sciences, 76, 78 Duncan, Cheri, 4 duplicate requests, 160
 Durrant, Summer, 23
- E
- easel.ly, 216–217
 Ebbesen, Jonas B., 32
 e-books
 cost data for, 170–171
 data preparation for inventory method, 72–73
 e-book reports in COUNTER 4, 167
 e-resource environmental scan, 102–106
 e-resource use analysis, 166
 subject area in e-resource use spreadsheets, 171 title-level information for, 112 turnaway analysis for, 175–177
 use data, 169–170, 172–174
 EBSCOhost platform, 202 echo chamber effect, 29, 182 Eigenfactor Score
 calculation of, 197
 with Eigenfactor platform, 196
 harvesting data from JCR, 198
 Eigenfactor.org, 196, 217
 e-journals
 cost data for, 170–171
 data, preparation of, 168–169
 data preparation for inventory method, 72
 e-resource environmental scan, 102–106
 e-resource use analysis, 166 line graph for use data, 173, 174 resource use data, 169
 subject area in e-resource use spreadsheets, 171
 turnaway analysis for, 175–177
 use data, analysis of, 172–174
 use data, sourcing, 167–168 use statistics, table for compiling, 168 electronic collections, 72–73
 Electronic Resource Management System (ERMS)
 for e-resource use analysis, 174
 for turnaway analysis, 177
 turnaway data from, 176
 Elsevier's Scopus, 190, 196, 197
 e-mail, 122 environmental factors, 22 environmental scan See e-resource environmental scan equity
 holistic collections assessment and, 6
 inclusivity of assessment project, 29–31
 e-resource environmental scan
 assessment goals relevant to, 101
 complementary methods, 106
 data analysis/use, 104–105
 data preparation for, 102–104
 data visualizations, 105
 formats, 102
 key to, 101
 for peer benchmarking, 99
 software for, 106
 strengths/shortcomings of, 102
 e-resource evaluation
 project plan for, 39, 40
 sample communication plan for, 47–48
 e-resource use analysis
 altmetric analysis and, 205
 assessment goals relevant to, 165–166
 with bibliometric analysis, 200 with circulation analysis, 154
 citation analysis and, 186
 complementary methods, 174
 constituent publishing outlets and, 193
 data analysis/use, 171–174
 data preparation for, 166–171
 data visualizations for, 173, 174
 for e-resource environmental scan, 106
 with focus groups, 139
 formats, applicable, 166
 with ILL analysis, 163
 with interview data, 134
 inventory method and, 74
 key to, 165
 patron demographic mapping and, 114
 with persona exercises, 144
 software for, 174
 strengths/shortcomings of, 166
 with turnaway analysis, 177
 with user surveys, 125

e-resources

- circulation data and, 149
- core, identification of, 104
- data preparation for inventory method, 72–73
- patron demographic mapping, 112, 113
- unique, identification of, 104–105

ERMS

See Electronic Resource Management System

- evaluation, of assessment project, 40
- expectations, 36
- expected use, percentage of, 151–152
- expenditures, 12
- “Extending the Social Justice Mindset: Implications for Scholarly Communication” (Baildon), 30
- external citation analysis
 - simple option for, 186
 - source material for, 182–183

F

facilitator

- conducting focus group, 138
- identification/training of, 137–138 feedback

- on data visualization, 46
- user surveys, 117–126

Few, Stephen, 43, 44

filtering, 53

finances

- adjusting financial footprint goal, 12–13
- demonstrating financial impact goal, 25
- manage ongoing financial commitments goal, 226
- sample collections assessment portfolio, 221–222

financial authorities, 16

5-Year Impact Factor, 197, 198

flexibility

- with holistic assessment, 5, 6
- of project time line, 38

focus groups

- altmetric analysis and, 206
- assessment goals relevant to, 135
- with bibliometric analysis, 200
- complementary methods, 139
- conducting, 138
- data analysis/use, 139
- data preparation for, 136–138
- formats, applicable, 136
- key to, 135
- for outcomes assessment, 58
- patron demographic mapping and, 114
- with persona exercises, 144
- for physical item ROI, 158

software for, 139

- strengths/shortcomings of, 136
- with user surveys, 125

focus groups script, 137

follow-through staff, 16

follow-up activities, 138

follow-up questions, 132

follow-up surveys, 125

footprint

- adjusting digital footprint goal, 225
- adjusting financial footprint goal, 12–13
- adjusting physical footprint goal, 12, 224
- mapping goals to data, 25

formats

- for circulation analysis, 148
- for citation analysis, 182, 185–186
- of citation data, 191
- of constituent publishing outlets, 190
- e-resource environmental scan, 102
- for e-resource use analysis, 166
- for exporting data, 52
- for focus groups, 136
- for interlibrary loan analysis, 160
- inventory method and, 70
- for modified brief test method, 82
- patron demographic mapping, 110
- peer benchmarking, 94
- for physical item return on investment, 156
- for reports on physical data, 71
- for reputable bibliographies method, 76
- trends of users’ publications, 191–192
- for turnaway analysis, 176
- for uniqueness method, 88

four-quadrant grid

- description of, 22
- diagram of, 23
- mapping collections data to, 27

framework

- balance of data and, 27–29
- choice of, 21–23, 64
- as core component of collections assessment project, 21
- inclusivity of, 29
- selection of, 63
- Traditional, Borin and Yi, Goldilocks frameworks, 23

Fry, Amy, 152

full population, user survey for, 121

funding

- adjusting financial footprint goal and, 12–13
- demonstrating impact goal and, 10–11
- See also* budget; finances

“Future of the Academic Library Print Collection: A Space for Engagement” (ASU Libraries), 30

G

Gantt chart, 18, 19
 GitHub, 217
 goals, assessment
 altmetric analysis and, 201–202
 Assessment Planning Template for, 211 assessment report and, 42 bibliometric analysis and, 195 circulation analysis and, 147–148
 citation analysis and, 181–182
 combining with questions/actions, 13–14
 constituent publishing outlets and, 189
 e-resource environmental scan and, 101
 e-resource use analysis and, 165–166
 examples of, 10–13
 focus groups and, 135 interlibrary loan analysis and, 159–160 interviews and, 129–130
 inventory method and, 69–70
 mapping to data, 24–27 methods for collections and, 67 modified brief test method and, 82
 patron demographic mapping and, 109 peer benchmarking and, 93 persona exercises and, 141–142 physical item return on investment and, 155–156 reputable bibliographies method and, 75 sample collections assessment portfolios, 221–230 scope, definition of in project plan, 37 setting, 9–10
 turnaway analysis and, 175
 uniqueness method and, 87
 for user survey, 118–119
 user surveys and, 117–118
 GOBI, 77, 79
 Gold Rush, 99, 217
 Goldhor, Herbert, 77
 Goldilocks framework
 choice of, 64
 citations indicator of, 179 collections indicator of, 67
 description of, 22
 diagram of, 23
 mapping collections data to, 28
 sample collections assessment portfolios, 221–230
 selection of, 63
 usage indicator of, 145 users indicators of, 107–108
 Google Drive, 217
 Google Forms, 125, 217
 Google Sheets
 data cleaning, 52–53

data merging in, 54–55
 function of/features of, 217
 pivot tables in, 56

H

Hall, Blaine on assessment manual, xix guide to sample size, 50, 51
 HCPU (hypothetical cost per use), 176
 Hennen's American Public Library Ratings, 94 high-use items, 172
 H-Index
 bibliometric analysis data, 196
 calculation of, 197
 holdings, 198
 holistic collections assessment
 assessment outcomes, 5–6 case studies on, 4
 description of, 3
 frameworks for, 4
 organizational benefits, 6–7
 process improvements, 5
 Hope, Alex, 32
 “How to Drink from a Fire Hose without Drowning: Collections Assessment in a Numbers-Driven Environment” (Wilde & Level), 4 human impact goal, 222 hybrid graph, 206 hypothetical cost per use (HCPU), 176

I

identifiable data, 58–59
 ILL analysis
 See interlibrary loan (ILL) analysis Immediacy Index
 calculation of, 197
 harvesting data from JCR, 198 impact demonstrating financial impact goal, 221–222
 demonstrating human impact goal, 222
 demonstrating impact goal, 10–11
 mapping goals to data, 25 questions/actions related to, 11 Impact Factor
 bibliometric analysis data, 196
 calculation of, 197
 as evaluative metric, 195 harvesting data from JCR, 198 shortcomings of, 5 implementation, 17

- inclusion
 - holistic collections assessment and, 6
 - inclusivity of assessment project, 29–31
- “Indicators for Collection Evaluation: A New Dimensional Framework” (Borin & Hua Yi), 4
- inductive list-checking
 - analysis of data, 79
 - of master bibliography, 77
- infographic
 - for bibliometric analysis, 200
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 105
 - for interview data, 134
 - for persona exercises, 144
 - showing collection size by format, 74
 - showing uniqueness actions, 91
 - for user survey, 126
- “Information Visualization” (Chen), 43
- informed consent form, 131, 132
- informing day-to-day decisions goal, 10, 13
- informing stakeholders goal
 - as category of goals, 10
 - mapping goals to data, 25
 - overview of, 11
 - sample collections assessment portfolio, 223
- in-person survey, 122
- Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) Public Libraries Survey, 70
- institutional repository (IR), 190–191
- institutional research and reporting office, 94
- institutional review board (IRB)
 - permissions for focus groups, 137
 - permissions for interviews, 131
 - permissions for user survey, 121
- Integrated Library System (ILS)
 - circulation analysis and, 149–153
 - for e-resource use analysis, 174
 - e-resource use data and, 168
 - inventory method and, 70–71
 - patron demographic mapping and, 111–112, 114
 - for physical item ROI calculation, 156, 158
 - software for assessment and, 215
 - for turnaway analysis, 176, 177
- Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS), 70, 94
- interdisciplinary assessments, 56–57
- interlibrary loan (ILL)
 - statistics for diversity assessment, 31
 - turnaway analysis and, 176, 177
- interlibrary loan (ILL) analysis
 - assessment goals relevant to, 159–160
 - of bibliography titles, 80
 - with bibliometric analysis, 200
 - with circulation analysis, 154
 - complementary methods, 162
 - constituent publishing outlets and, 193
 - data analysis/use, 161–162
 - data preparation for, 160
 - data visualizations for, 162
 - formats, applicable, 160
 - in holistic assessment, 6
 - inventory method and, 74
 - key to, 159
 - limitations of, 5
 - with modified brief test method, 85
 - for peer benchmarking, 100
 - with persona exercises, 144
 - software for, 162
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 160
 - with turnaway analysis, 177
- internal citation analysis, 182
- Internet, Phone, Mail, and Mixed-Mode Surveys: The Tailored Design Method* (Dillman, Smyth, & Melani), 122
- interviewees, 131–132
- interviewers, 131
- interviews
 - administration of, 132
 - assessment goals relevant to, 129–130
 - for citation analysis, 186
 - complementary methods, 134
 - data analysis/use, 132–133
 - data preparation for, 130–132
 - data visualizations for, 133–134
 - key to, 129
 - for outcomes assessment, 58
 - with persona exercises, 144
 - for physical item ROI, 158
 - questions, drafting, 130–131
 - software for, 134
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 130
- introduction, of focus group script, 137
- inventory
 - of data, 23–24
 - with ILL analysis, 163
 - of inclusive collection, 30
 - method for, 27
 - patron demographic mapping and, 114
 - of stakeholder groups, 17
 - worksheet for conducting high-level data inventory, 212
- inventory method
 - assessment goals related to, 69–70
 - complementary methods to, 74
 - data analysis/use, 73–74
 - data preparation for, 70–73
 - formats, 70
 - key for, 69
 - modified brief test method and, 84

software for, 74
 strengths/shortcomings of, 70
 IPEDS (Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System), 70, 94
 IR (institutional repository), 190–191
 “iron triangle” of project management, 32 ISBN for BBAS matching, 78
 cost data for e-resource use analysis, 170–171
 as match point for data merging, 54
 for turnaway analysis, 176
 ISSN
 cost data for e-resource use analysis, 170–171
 as match point for data merging, 54, 55 for merging data, 176 item lists, 156
 Ithaka Research, 119

J

Journal Citation Reports (JCR) platform
 for bibliometric analysis, 200
 bibliometrics, calculation of, 197
 bibliometrics from, 196
 function of/features of, 218
 harvesting data from, 198
 subject area in e-resource use spreadsheets, 171
 journal report (JR1), 167, 168–169 Journal Utilization Report, 184 journals
 altmetric analysis, 201–207
 bibliometric analysis, 195–200
 citation analysis for, 181–187
 constituent publishing outlets, 191, 192
 e-resource list for patron demographic mapping, 112
See also e-journals

K

Kaushik, Avinash, 32 Kelly, Madeline, 4 key to altmetric analysis, 201
 to bibliometric analysis, 195
 to circulation analysis, 147
 to citation analysis, 181
 to constituent publishing outlets, 189
 to e-resource environmental scan, 101
 to e-resource use analysis, 165 explanation of sections of, 64
 to focus groups, 135
 to interlibrary loan analysis, 159
 to interviews, 129

to inventory method, 69
 to modified brief test method, 81
 to patron demographic mapping, 109
 to peer benchmarking, 93
 to persona exercises, 141
 to physical item return on investment, 155
 to reputable bibliographies method, 75
 to turnaway analysis, 175
 to uniqueness method, 87
 to user surveys, 117
 Knowlton, Steven, 152, 161
 Kohn, Karen, 167

L

language user groups for patron demographic mapping, 110
 of user survey, 119
 language preferences citation analysis of, 185–186
 constituent publishing outlets, 192 legislation, 202 lending requests, 156–162
 Level, Allison, 4
Library Journal's Best Books, 77 library needs, 143
 “The Library of Babel: Making Sense of Collection Management in a Postmodern World” (Bodi & Maier-O’Shea), 4
 Library of Congress (LC) circulation analysis by LC subclass, 150, 151, 152, 153 data visualization of collection by, 44 interdisciplinary assessments and, 57 library services platform (LSP), 215 library surveys, 119
Library Technology Reports, 43 Likert scale questions, 120 line graphs for cost per use for databases, 173 for journal use, 174
 use of, 44
 list-checking with Bowker Book Analysis System, 78
 data analysis, 78–79
 in e-resource environmental scan, 103
 master bibliography, 77
 with OCLC WorldShare Collection Evaluation, 78
 WCE for checking uniqueness, 89 local resources, 102 logistical planning, 138 lookup value, 55
 low-use items, 172
 LSP (library services platform), 215

Lugg, Rick, 89
Luther, Michael, 4

M

- Maier-O'Shea, Katie, 4
maintain collections thoughtfully and deliberately goal, 26, 228-229
Malenfant, Kara J., 58 manage one-time purchases goal, 227 manage ongoing financial commitments goal, 26, 226 managing one-time spending goal, 26 mapping collections data to Borin and Yi framework, 28 collections data to Goldilocks framework, 28 collections data to traditional framework, 27 goals to data, 24-27 See also demographic mapping margin of error, 49-50 master bibliography, 76-77 match point, 54 meetings, 41-42
Melani Christian, Leah, 122
methods
 altmetric analysis, 201-207
 bibliometric analysis, 195-200
 circulation analysis, 147-154
 citation analysis, 181-188
 citations methods, overview of, 179-180 for collections, 67-68 collections methods, overview of, 67-68
 constituent publishing outlets, 189-194
 as core component of collections assessment project, 21
 e-resource environmental scan, 101-106
 e-resource use analysis, 165-174
 focus groups, 135-139
 framework choice and, 21-23, 63
 interlibrary loan analysis, 159-164
 interviews, 129-134
 inventory, 69-74
 key for, 64
 modified brief test method, 81-85 overview of chapters on, 63-65
 patron demographic mapping, 109-115
 peer benchmarking, 93-100
 persona exercises, 141-144
 physical item return on investment, 155-158
 in project plan, 37-38
 reflection on choice of, 65
 reputable bibliographies method, 75-80 sample/custom portfolios of, 63-64
 turnaway analysis, 175-177
 uniqueness method, 87-91 usage methods, overview of, 145-146
 user surveys, 117-127
 users methods, overview of, 107-108 worksheet for selecting collections assessment methods, 213 metrics
 altmetric analysis, 201-207 of assessment frameworks, 22
 bibliometric analysis, 195-200
 for e-resource use analysis, 166, 167
 for outcomes assessment, 57, 58
 process improvements with holistic assessment, 5
 sustainability of assessment project and, 31
 weakness of, 5
Microsoft Access
 for bibliometric analysis, 200
 data merging with, 55-56
 for e-resource use analysis, 174
 function of/features of, 218
 for reputable bibliographies method, 80
Microsoft Excel
 for altmetric analysis, 205
 for bibliometric analysis, 200
 for citation analysis, 186
 for constituent publishing outlets, 192
 data cleaning, 52-53, 184
 data merging in, 54-55
 data visualizations with, 44
 for e-resource environmental scan, 106
 for e-resource use analysis, 174
 function of/features of, 218
 ILL analysis with, 161
 for modified brief test method, 84
 for patron demographic mapping, 114
 for peer benchmarking, 99
 for physical item ROI calculation, 158
 pivot tables in, 56
 for reputable bibliographies method, 80
 for turnaway analysis, 177
 for uniqueness method, 91
 for user surveys, 125
Microsoft Publisher, 143, 218
Microsoft Word
 for focus groups, 139
 function of/features of, 218
 for interview data, 134
 for persona exercises, 143
mind map, 133
MIT, 30
Mittal, Rekha, 152
modified brief test method applicable formats, 82
 assessment goals and, 82

- complementary methods, 84–85
- data analysis/use, 83–84
- data preparation for, 82–83
- data visualizations for, 84
- description of, 81
- key for, 81
- software for, 84
- strengths/shortcomings of, 82
- monographs
 - citation analysis, 182, 184, 185
 - constituent publishing outlets, 191, 192
 - data preparation for inventory method, 71
 - modified brief test method for, 82–85
 - patron demographic mapping, 111
- multidisciplinary databases, 112
- multiple choice questions, 120

N

- National Public Radio's Best Books, 77
- needs
 - align collections with user needs goal, 230
 - citation analysis for, 181, 182
 - library needs of personas, 143
- neutral option, 120
- news outlets, 202
- Nicholson, Scott, 4
- non-standard (non-COUNTER) data, 166–167, 169
- non-users
 - persona exercises and, 142
 - user survey responses from, 122
- Notepad, 52
- notes, 132, 138, 139
- notifications, 58–59
- Now You See It (Few)*, 43
- NVIVO
 - focus group data in, 138, 139
 - function of/features of, 218
 - for interview data, 132, 133, 134
 - for parsing/visualizing user survey data, 124
 - for user survey data analysis, 123–124
 - for user surveys, 125

O

- objective, 118
- obstacles, 35–36
- OCLC
 - number, as match point for data merging, 54
 - SCS GreenGlass, 88–89, 95
- OCLC WorldShare Collection Evaluation (WCE)
 - broad collections trends, identification of, 98
 - for checking uniqueness, 89

- core titles, identification of, 97
- function of/features of, 218
- ILL reports with, 160
- interdisciplinary assessment with, 57
- list-checking with, 78
- for peer benchmarking, 95–96, 99
- predefined lists for peer group identification, 94
- for reputable bibliographies method, 80
- for uniqueness method, 91
- O'Gara, Genya, 4
- 1figr, 189, 216
- one-time purchases, 227
- one-to-many peer comparisons, 96–97
- one-to-one peer comparisons
 - data analysis, 98–99
 - one-to-many comparisons vs., 96–97
 - permission for, 96
- online survey, 122
- Open Access (OA) content
 - constituent publishing outlets, 192
 - e-book use data and, 170
 - e-journal resource use analysis, 169
 - e-resource use analysis and, 167
 - evaluation of, 105
 - marking in e-resource environmental scan, 103
- open-ended questions, 120, 132
- OpenRefine
 - for bibliometric analysis, 200
 - data cleaning in, 53
 - for e-resource use analysis, 174
 - function of/features of, 218
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 80
- organizational benefits, of holistic collections assessment, 6–7
- outcomes assessment, 57–58
- outliers, 53
- overlap status, 98
- oversight, 39

P

- packaging, 122
- parameters, 148
- parsing, 183–184
- participants, focus group, 136–137, 138
- partnership, 130
 - See also* collaboration
- patron demographic mapping
 - assessment goals relevant to, 109
 - with circulation analysis, 154
 - complementary methods, 114
 - constituent publishing outlets and, 192–193
 - data analysis, 112–114

- patron demographic mapping (continued)
 - data preparation for, 110–112
 - data visualizations for, 114, 115
 - with e-resource use analysis, 174
 - formats, 110
 - with ILL analysis, 163
 - inventory method and, 74
 - key to, 109
 - with modified brief test method, 85
 - with persona exercises, 143
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 80
 - software for, 114
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 110
- patrons
 - See* users
- peer benchmarking
 - assessment goals related to, 93
 - complementary methods, 99–100
 - for cross-checking bibliography, 80
 - data analysis/use, 97–99
 - data preparation for, 94–97
 - data visualizations for, 99, 100
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 106
 - formats, applicable, 94
 - key to, 93
 - with modified brief test method, 84–85
 - software for, 99
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 94
 - WCE for checking uniqueness, 89
- peer comparisons, 30–31
- peer group
 - core titles, identification of, 97
 - e-resource environmental scan, 101–106
 - identification of, 94–95
 - in OCLC WorldShare Collection Evaluation, 95–96
 - one-to-many/one-to-one peer comparisons, 96–97
- peer resources, 102–103
- percentage of expected use (PEU), 151–152, 162
- percentage of items unused, 151
- performance, 201–207
- performance index (p-index), 152–153
- permissions
 - for focus groups, 137
 - for interview of users, 131
 - for peer comparisons, 96
 - for user survey, 121
- persona exercises
 - assessment goals relevant to, 141–142
 - complementary methods, 143–144
 - data analysis/use, 143
 - data preparation for, 142–143
 - data visualizations for, 143, 144
 - key to, 141
 - software for, 143
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 142
- PEU (percentage of expected use), 151–152, 162
- phone interviews, 122
- physical collections, 70–71
- physical footprint
 - adjusting physical footprint goal, 12, 224
 - mapping goals to data, 25
- physical item return on investment (ROI)
 - assessment goals relevant to, 155–156
 - complementary methods, 158
 - data analysis/use, 156–157
 - data preparation for, 156
 - data visualizations for, 157, 158
 - formats, applicable, 156
 - key to, 155
 - software for, 158
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 156
- pie charts
 - for altmetric analysis, 207
 - for citation analysis, 187
 - for communication, 45, 46
 - for ILL data, 163
 - for patron demographic mapping, 115
 - for peer benchmarking data, 100
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 79
 - use of, 44
 - for user surveys, 125
 - of users' publications by subject, 193
- Piktochart, 200, 218
- pivot tables
 - for altmetric analysis, 204, 205
 - for circulation analysis, 150, 151, 152
 - for citation analysis, 185
 - for CPU for e-resources, 171
 - for e-journal resource use analysis, 169
 - for e-resource use analysis, 172
 - for ILL analysis, 161–162
 - overview of, 56
 - for patron demographic mapping, 113, 114
 - for peer benchmarking, 98
 - for physical data aggregation, 71–72
 - for physical item ROI calculation, 156–157
- PLA
 - See* Public Library Association
- planning
 - assessment in project plan, 39–40
 - Assessment Planning Templates, 211–213
 - assessment tools, criteria for, 31–32
 - balance of data, 27–29
 - challenges, anticipating, 35–36

- data, selection of, 23–24
- data methods, 27
- framework, choice of, 21–23
- inclusion, pursuit of, 29–31
- logistical planning for focus group, 138
- mapping goals to data, 24–27
- project plan, development of, 36–38
- project plan for e-resource evaluation, 40
- project plan, importance of, 35
- sample communication plans, 47–48
- stakeholder engagement in, 17, 18
- sustainability of assessment project, 31
- PlumX, 202
- population
 - sample size and, 50–51
 - sampling results and, 49–50
 - target population for user survey, 121–122
- portfolios, sample collections assessment, 221–230
- postal mail, 122
- Prathap, Gangan, 152
- predefined lists, 94
- Price, Jason S., 167
- print circulation
 - circulation analysis, 147–154
 - e-resource use statistics and, 165
- privacy
 - outcomes assessment and, 57, 58
 - of patron data, 111
 - user privacy, 58–59
 - of user survey, 121
- process improvements, 5
- professional development, 32
- Project COUNTER website, 166
- project leader, 37
- project management, 32
- project management tools, 215
- Project Outcome* (Public Library Association), 57
- project participants, 37
- project planning
 - assessment in project plan, 39–40
 - challenges, anticipating, 35–36
 - importance of, 35
 - project plan, development of, 36–38
 - project plan for e-resource evaluation, 40
 - project plan, worksheet for development of, 212
- project sponsor, 16, 37
- ProQuest, 103–104
- proxy log data, 167
- public libraries
 - non-users, user survey and, 122
 - outcomes assessment by, 57, 58
 - peer group, identification of, 94

- Public Library Association (PLA)
 - PLA Metrics, 94
 - Project Outcome, 57, 119
- publications
 - altmetric analysis, 201–207
 - bibliometric analysis, 195–200
 - constituent publishing outlets, 190–191
- Publisher's Weekly* Best Books, 76
- punctuation, 53
- purchases, 227

Q

- qualitative analysis software, 123–124
- qualitative data analysis tools, 215
- Qualtrics
 - function of/features of, 218–219
 - for user surveys, 125
- questions
 - for adjusting physical footprint of collections, 12
 - for assessment goals, 9–10, 13–14
 - Assessment Planning Template for, 211
 - for bibliometric analysis, 198–199
 - for collection impact, 11
 - for expenditures, 12
 - for failed library projects, 36
 - for focus group data preparation, 136
 - in focus group script, 137
 - for informing stakeholders goal, 11
 - interview, drafting, 130–131
 - for inventory data analysis, 73
 - mapping goals to data, 24–26
 - for survey instrument development, 118–119
 - for sustainability of assessment project, 31
 - of user survey, 119–120

R

- range lookup, 55
- ranking
 - one-to-one peer comparisons, 96
 - questions in user survey, 120
- rarely held content, 89, 90
- rating
 - collections based on modified brief test, 83–84
 - overall rating in methods key, 64
- RCL (Resources for College Libraries), 78
- recording
 - of focus group, 138
 - of interview, 132
- reflection, 18
- relationships, 16

- relative size, 45
 - reliability, 49–50, 56
 - Relyea, George E., 161
 - reports
 - for circulation analysis, 148
 - communication of results, 42–43
 - database statistics, 169
 - e-journal data, 168–169
 - for e-journal resource use analysis, 168–169
 - ILL data analysis/use, 161–163
 - ILL reports, 160
 - for patron demographic mapping, 111–112
 - of physical data in inventory method, 71
 - template for developing basic assessment report, 48, 213
 - turnaway reports, 176
 - representative sample
 - methods for, 50–51
 - for user survey, 121
 - reputable bibliographies method
 - applicable formats, 76
 - assessment goals and, 75
 - complementary methods, 80
 - data analysis/use, 78–79
 - data preparation for, 76–78
 - key for, 75
 - modified brief test method with, 85
 - software for, 80
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 76
 - visualizations for, 79
 - requests, 160, 161
 - research performance, 201–207
 - resource intensity, 64
 - Resource Sharing Stats report, 160
 - Resources for College Libraries (RCL), 78
 - responses, 123–125
 - responsibilities, 37
 - results
 - communication of, 42–43
 - outcomes assessment, 57–58
 - return on investment (ROI)
 - circulation analysis for calculation of, 149
 - physical item return on investment, 155–158
 - RLG scale, 83
 - roles, 37
 - Rose-Wiles, Lisa M., 152
- S
- Saldaña, Johnny, 123
 - Salisbury University, 32
 - sample
 - selection of for user survey, 121–122
 - size of, 50–51, 88
 - sample collections assessment portfolios, 63, 221–230
 - sample communication plans, 47–48
 - sampling
 - of citations for citation analysis, 183
 - population size, 49–50
 - representative, 50–51
 - selection of sample for user survey, 121–122
 - scan
 - See e-resource environmental scan
 - scatterplot
 - for citation analysis, 187
 - with holdings in WorldCat, 91
 - for item-level cost, 157
 - scholarly publishing, 22
 - School Library Journal's Best Of*, 76
 - SCImago
 - bibliometrics from, 196
 - function of/features of, 219
 - Journal & Country Rank, 198
 - scope
 - of bibliometric analysis, 196
 - of e-resource environmental scan, 102
 - for inventory method, 70
 - in project plan, 37
 - uniqueness method and, 88
 - Scopus
 - for bibliometric analysis, 200
 - bibliometrics, calculation of, 197
 - bibliometrics from, 196
 - constituent publishing outlets, 189, 191–192
 - function of/features of, 219
 - harvesting data from, 198
 - PlumX altmetrics and, 202
 - pulling publication data from, 190
 - score, 83–84
 - script, focus group, 137
 - SCS GreenGlass
 - collection depth, identification of, 89–90
 - function of/features of, 219
 - for peer benchmarking, 95, 99
 - peer comparisons data analysis, 97
 - for uniqueness determination, 88–89
 - for uniqueness method, 91
 - search, 203
 - security
 - of patron data, 111
 - for user privacy, 58–59
 - Self, Jim, 50
 - self-selecting pool, 121
 - semantic differential scale, 120
 - serials
 - data preparation for inventory method, 72
 - e-resource list for patron demographic mapping, 112

- services, 57
- shared governance structures, 15–16
- shortcomings
 - See strengths/shortcomings
 - Show Me the Numbers (Few)*, 43
- SJR
 - bibliometric analysis data, 196
 - calculation of, 197
 - harvesting data from Scopus, 198
- Slack, 219
- Smyth, Jolene D., 122
- SNIP, 197, 198
- social media, 201–207
- software
 - for altmetric analysis, 205
 - for bibliometric analysis, 200
 - for circulation analysis, 153
 - for citation analysis, 186
 - for constituent publishing outlets, 192
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 106
 - for e-resource use analysis, 174
 - for focus groups, 139
 - for interlibrary loan analysis, 162
 - for interview data, 133
 - for interviews, 134
 - for inventory method, 74
 - for modified brief test method, 84
 - for patron demographic mapping, 114
 - for peer benchmarking, 99
 - for persona exercises, 143
 - for physical item return on investment, 158
 - for reputable bibliographies method, 80
 - to support assessment, 215–220
 - for turnaway analysis, 177
 - for uniqueness method, 91
 - for user survey data analysis, 123
 - for user surveys, 125
- sources
 - of altmetrics, 202–204
 - for citation analysis, choice of, 182–183
 - of use data, 167–168
- special characters, 53
- special collections, 94
- special considerations
 - data, merging, 53–56
 - data cleaning, basic, 52–53
 - data validity, 56
 - interdisciplinary assessments, 56–57
 - outcomes assessment, 57–58
 - pivot tables, 56
 - sampling, 49–51
 - structuring data, 51–52
 - user privacy, 58–59
- spreadsheets
 - for citation analysis, 183–184, 186
 - for constituent publishing outlets, 191–192
 - data cleaning, 52–53
 - data merging, 54–56
 - data preparation for inventory method, 71–72
 - data preparation for modified brief test method, 82–83
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 102–106
 - for e-resource use analysis, 168–172, 174
 - spreadsheet tools, list of, 215
 - uniqueness method and, 88
- squeaky wheels, 16
- staff, 15–16
- stakeholder engagement time line
 - examples of, 18–19
 - in project plan, 38
 - for project plan development, 37
 - stages of assessment project, 17–18
 - worksheet for developing, 211
- stakeholders
 - collaboration time lines, examples of, 18–19
 - communication of results to, 42–43
 - communication with, ongoing, 41–42
 - in culture of assessment, 7
 - engagement timelines for working with, 17–18
 - holistic collections assessment and, 6
 - identification of, 15–16
 - informing stakeholders goal, 11, 25, 223
 - input on inclusive collection, 30
 - inventory of, 17
 - project plan development with, 36, 37, 38
 - project plan for clarification of expectations, 35
 - working with, 17
- standard deviation, 50
- Standardized Usage Statistics Harvesting Initiative (SUSHI), 167, 168
- Steigerwald, Douglas G., 167
- stories, 42–43
- streaming media
 - cost data for, 170–171
 - e-resource use analysis, 166
 - subject area in e-resource use spreadsheets, 171
 - use data analysis, 170, 172–174
- streamlining, 40
- strengths/shortcomings
 - of altmetric analysis, 202
 - of bibliometric analysis, 196
 - of circulation analysis, 148
 - of citation analysis, 182
 - of constituent publishing outlets, 190
 - of e-resource environmental scan, 102
 - of e-resource use analysis, 166
 - of focus groups, 136

strengths/shortcomings (continued) of interlibrary loan analysis, 160 of interviews, 130 of inventory method, 70 of modified brief test method, 82 of patron demographic mapping, 110 of peer benchmarking, 94 of persona exercises, 142 of physical item return on investment, 156 of reputable bibliographies method, 76 of turnaway analysis, 176 of uniqueness method, 88 of user surveys, 118 studies, citation analysis, 188 subject affiliation, 110, 111

subject experts, 94

subject standards, 22 subjects bibliography selection and, 76 interdisciplinary assessments, 56–57

 subject area in e-resource use analysis, 171 trends in, 191

subscriptions, 175–177

summary, of focus groups, 138, 139

survey instrument administering, 122 development of, 118–120 permissions for, 121 sample selection, 121–122 testing, 121 timing of, 122

SurveyMonkey, 125, 219

surveys data validity, 56
 interviews vs., 130
 for outcomes assessment, 58 survey tools, list of, 215
 user surveys, 117–126
See also user surveys

SUSHI (Standardized Usage Statistics Harvesting Initiative), 167, 168

T

table array, 55

Tableau
 for constituent publishing outlets, 192
 data visualizations with, 44
 function of/features of, 219

tall data, 52

target population, 121–122, 136–137 targeted collection development, 153 targeted sampling, 51

templates, assessment planning, 211–213

10/90 Rule, 32

terms, 53

tests of data validity, 56 of focus group questions, 137
 of interview, 131
 modified brief test method, 81–85
 user surveys, 121

themes, 132–133, 139 time line

 in project plan, 38
 project time line, sharing, 39 stakeholder engagement time line, worksheet for, 211 stakeholder engagement timeline, 17–19

timing, 122

Tipasa, 160

titles
 citation analysis for core titles, 185
 cost data for e-resource use analysis, 170–171
 e-journal resource use analysis, 168–169
 ILL analysis for targeted collection development, 161 in master bibliography, 77–78
 as match point for data merging, 54
 modified brief test method, 81–85
 turnaway analysis, 175–177

tools
 assessment tools, criteria for, 31–32
 as core component of collections assessment project, 21
See also software

top-ranked institutions, 94

“Total Library Assessment” (Luther), 4

TR_J1 report, 168–169 traditional framework choice of, 64

 description of, 22
 mapping collections data to, 27
 sample collections assessment portfolios, 221–230
 selection of, 63

training of focus group facilitator, 137–138 of interviewers, 131 tree map for data visualization of collection by LC or DDC, 44 showing multiple dimensions across many categories, 46 showing relative size, 45

 of users’ publications by subject, 193

Trello, 220

trends in circulation data, 149 in ILL transactions, 161–162

truncation, 53

- TSV format, 52
- Tufte, Edward, 43
- turnaway analysis
- assessment goals relevant to, 175
 - with bibliometric analysis, 200
 - complementary methods, 177
 - data analysis/use, 176–177
 - data preparation for, 176
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 106
 - with e-resource use analysis, 174
 - formats, applicable, 176
 - key to, 175
 - software for, 177
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 176
- Twiss, Thomas, 81
- ## U
- Ulrichsweb
- for classifications for journals, 112
 - for constituent publishing outlets, 191, 192
 - function of/features of, 220
 - for patron demographic mapping, 114
 - subject area in e-resource use spreadsheets, 171
- unique e-resources, 104–105
- unique identifier, 156, 161
- unique materials, 90
- uniqueness method
- assessment goals and, 87
 - complementary methods, 91
 - data analysis/use, 89–90
 - data preparation, 88–89
 - data visualizations for, 90–91
 - formats, applicable, 88
 - key for, 87
 - software for, 91
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 88
- University of Washington, 197
- unused items, 151
- updates, 42
- U.S. Census Bureau, 95, 110
- U.S. News and World Report*, 94
- usage methods
- circulation analysis, 147–154
 - e-resource use analysis, 165–174
 - framework selection and, 22
 - interlibrary loan analysis, 159–164
 - overview of section covering, 145–146
 - physical item return on investment, 155–158
 - turnaway analysis, 175–177
- use analysis, 165–174
- use data
- analysis/use of, 171–174
 - cost data, 170–171
 - database statistics, 169
 - e-book data, 169–170
 - e-journal data, 168–169
 - process improvements with holistic assessment, 5
 - sourcing, 167–168
 - streaming media data, 170
 - subject area data, 171
 - types of, 166–167
- use group, 162
- use per item, 149–150
- user demographics, 31
- user feedback
- method for, 27
 - as tool for diversity of collection, 31
- user groups
- interview planning process and, 130
 - for patron demographic mapping, 110–111
 - for persona exercises, 142
- user interviews
- citation analysis and, 186
 - for e-resource environmental scan, 106
- user needs, 26
- user outcomes, 57–58
- user privacy, 58–59
- user proportions, 112
- user surveys
- altmetric analysis and, 206
 - assessment goals relevant to, 117–118
 - with bibliometric analysis, 200
 - citation analysis and, 186
 - complementary methods, 125
 - data analysis/use, 123–125
 - data preparation for, 118–122
 - data visualizations for, 125, 126
 - with e-resource use analysis, 174
 - with focus groups, 139
 - in holistic assessment, 6
 - with interview data, 134
 - key to, 117
 - limitations of, 5
 - with modified brief test method, 85
 - patron demographic mapping and, 114
 - for peer benchmarking, 99–100
 - with persona exercises, 144
 - for physical item ROI, 158
 - software for, 125
 - strengths/shortcomings of, 118
 - with turnaway analysis, 177
- users
- align collections with user needs goal, 230
 - in Borin and Yi's framework, 22
 - categorizing, 110–111

users (continued)

- focus groups, 135–139
- in Goldilocks framework, 22
- holistic collections assessment and, 6
- ILL analysis and, 159, 160
- interviews with, 129–134
- persona exercises, 141–144
- prominent users, 16
- turnaway analysis and, 175, 176
- See also* patron demographic mapping users methods

- focus groups, 135–139
- interviews, 129–134
- overview of section, 107–108
- patron demographic mapping, 109–115
- persona exercises, 141–144
- user surveys, 117–127

users' publications, 189–194

“Using Sampling to Assess Library Collections” (Self), 50

V

“A Validation of Brief Tests of Collection Strength” (Twiss), 81 vendors

- database statistics, 169
- for turnaway analysis, 177
- turnaway data from, 175, 176
- use data, sourcing, 167–168

vision, 119

The Visual Display of Quantitative Information (Tufte), 43

visualizations

See data visualizations

VLOOKUP data merge, 54

W

WCE

See OCLC WorldShare Collection Evaluation

Web of Science

- constituent publishing outlets, 189, 191–192
- function of/features of, 220
- publication data from, 190 websites, 42

weeding, 90

Western Library Network (WLN) Scale, 83

White, Howard, 81

wide data, 51, 52

Wilde, Michelle, 4

Wood-Doughty, Alex, 167

word cloud, 133, 139

word trees, 139

worksheets

- for assessment goals, questions, actions, 13
- Assessment Planning Templates, 211–213
- blank worksheet for tracking methods used, 64
- for communication plan, 47
- for methods, 64
- for project plan, 40

WorldCat

- for constituent publishing outlets, 191
- modified brief test method and, 81, 82–83
- OCLC WCE and, 96
- scatterplot showing holdings in, 91
- with uniqueness method, 88, 89, 91
- WCE data from, 78

WorldShare Collection Evaluation

See OCLC WorldShare Collection Evaluation

wrap-up, 137

X

XLSX format, 168

Y

yes-no questions, 120

Yi, Hua

framework of, 22, 23

“Indicators for Collection Evaluation: A New Dimensional Framework,” 4

Young, Courtney L., 29

Z

Zaugg, Holt, 23

Zotero

- for citation analysis, 186
- function of/features of, 220
- for parsing citations data, 184